CANADA ASKED TO HELP BRITAIN'S WORK

"QUOTA LAW" TO BE ASKED BY CONGRESS

Labor Convention Is to Discuss Question of "Subsidized Immigration" of Canada

SEEKING REMEDY FOR BIG PROBLEM

Contend Law Would Save Great Expense and Would Keep Canadians in Their Own Country

OTTAWA, Aug. 20.—When the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress meets in Saint John, N.B., next week for its annual deliberations, one of the most important items of the agenda will be the report of a committee selected to investigate and report on the extent of subsidized immigrants, who are recently arrived in Canada, is being hired to displace or prevent others who had been born in Canada or had resided here for some time, from securing employment.

"Those to be considered as subsidized immigrants," as used in this report, are those of either sex, kilts or minors, who come to Canada from other countries either on steamships or railways, or both, where the difference between the fare and the regular fare was made up from grants from Canada or other Governments or by the steamship companies themselves."

GATHER INFORMATION

Winnipeg Trades and Labor Council has for some time been gathering information in connection with immigration, and it is a report, coupled with some definite recommendations, which is to be presented for consideration at a forthcoming convention.

One of the recommendations is that restricted immigration should be established, similar to that which is in vogue in the United States, the "Quota Law" the committee feels would accomplish two main things. First, abolish the need for sending millions of dollars in assisting immigration. Second, restrict immigration so that it would also be possible for those now living in Canada to continue to do so.

FLIGHT ENDING

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 13.—Donald Templeton, former army flyer, at twenty-five gallons of gasoline aboard his monoplane at dusk to-night in what was expected to be the girl in what was expected to be the girl in refuting of his forty-hour endurance flight. Miss Pistol accepted him to land between 2 and 3 o'clock tomorrow morning, in his objective achieved.

Mr. R. B. Bennett Calls for Dumping Duties to Protect B.C. Fruit Growing Trade

PENTICTON, B.C., Aug. 20.—Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader, criticised Hon. Jacob Dan Ross, Hon. Herbert Marler, new Canadian Minister to Tokio, respecting comments in this district of the Canadian Minister, and the opposition chieftain coupled his criticism with a demand that the Dominion Government invoke the dumping provisions to protect not only the fruitgrowers of the Okanagan, but the fruit and vegetable growers in other parts of Canada.

"Here is a glorified trade commissioner in the guise of a minister coming here to tell you that you are prosperous," Mr. Bennett complained after reading the newspaper report of the statement by Mr. Marler "and no one is thinking of trade commissioners for the $500,000,000 market which we should have at home, while they are spending this money in other countries to buy goods.

THINK OF ABSURDITIES

"Where are the trade commissioners at home to develop Canada by the use of this $500,000,000 among Canadians?" he asked. "Think about the absurdity of what is being done. Here is a trade commissioner who has been talking about trade abroad, hardly within our doors is the $500,000,000 market and no trade commissioners are bothering about it."

The Prime Minister in Parliament, the Conservative leader said, had said that the new minister would deal with trade, except trade difficulties which would have to be dealt with through diplomatic channels. "Mr. Marler is telling the people he has a twofold mission. One is to have friendly relations between the two countries, and his other mission is to develop trade for British Columbia, and the Okanagan. Well, how is that to be done with the trade commissioners who are already there?" the opposition leader asked, and then he remarked "A glorified trade commissioner going about seeking publicity is not cute."

Graf Zeppelin to Start Upon Last Lap on Thursday

KASMIGAUCA, Japan, Aug. 21—Fair weather this morning and the steady progress in refueling and regassing of the Graf Zeppelin, apparently gave assurance that the giant dirigible would start for Los Angeles Thursday at 4 a.m.

Thousands flocked to the naval air base today for their last chance to view the leviathan of the air, nothing like which had hitherto been seen in Japan.

HEAR NOTHING OF TWO YOUNG SWISS FLYERS

Were Due at New York at 4 o'Clock Tuesday Afternoon—Last Seen Flying Over Azores

FEARED THEY HAVE LOST THEIR LIVES

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Two Swiss flyers, scarcely more than boys in years and experience, in a seaplane, were overdue tonight in their effort to conquer the westward crossing of the North Atlantic, an attempt which a far better equipped expeditions had failed before them.

With the unbounded confidence of youth, Oscar Kassar and Kurt Lonscher took off from Lisbon yesterday morning and headed their white monoplane for the far coast across the waves.

A German steamer saw them 175 miles at sea, and they flew over the Azores at 1 o'clock Eastern standard time, in the afternoon. Up to that time they had maintained a speed of ninety miles an hour. Judging from their speed so far as the Azores the Swiss fliers should have reached New York at 4 o'clock this afternoon, but there was no sign of them tonight. Pistol officials decided to burn the beacons at night, but there was little hope that the flyers would arrive.

HOLD-UP OF WHEAT HAS BAD EFFECT

Ladden Ships in Ports, Elevators Full and No Break in Sight, Creates Serious Situation

BLAMING MARKET FOR CONDITIONS

MONTREAL, Aug. 20.—Wartimes of the European buyer, consumption of home-grown wheat in many European countries, the price of Canadian wheat and pre-market conditions were various reasons assigned today in different quarters to the tie-up of Canadian wheat in Montreal and other Eastern points.

Whatever the cause, there are 120 inland Canadian ships in ports between the Lakes and the Atlantic and some 1800 Canadian sailors. It is estimated, are idle. The bins of elevators here are practically full, and there is no indication of a break. While the large steamship concerns are feeling the pinch keenly, with probably half of their ships standing idle, the lot of the small owner, of the man with one or two ships, is even more serious.

UNDERSELLING CANADA

The new crop will be on the move very shortly, but marketing conditions are unsatisfactory. Local dealers report both the United States and the Argentine as undersellers of Canada, and, while the European buyer must have a certain amount of Canadian grain, he is buying a minimum in the face of this competition, it is stated here.

FERTILIZER PLANT SITE IS ACQUIRED

Well-Known Waterfront Estate at Crofton Bought for Industrial Development Purposes

INQUIRIES ALSO FOR SAW MILL

Property Contains Buildings Used by Smelter, Some of Which Will Be Renovated for Plant

THE Victoria Fish Meal and Fertilizer Company has acquired 250 acres of land at Crofton, facing on Osborne Bay, for the purpose of development. The vendors are the British Metals Mining & Smelting Co., Ltd., of Britannia Beach, and the trustees of the Croft estate as represented by the Leonors and Mount Sicker Railway.

The intention of the company is to establish, as soon as the necessary incorporation has been completed, a fish meal and fertilizer plant, and to hold the balance of the estate for industrial development. Owing to the favorable location of the property it is probable that a sawmill and a pulp mill will occupy part of the waterfrontage.

The property has been purchased by Mr. Kenneth Watson, of San Francisco, and Mr. A. B. Watson, of Victoria, with the view of development, and the new company will take over portion of the estate.

FACES ROUNDING GROUND

The property is ideally located, and was made an industrial site thirty years ago, when a smelting was established on the waterfront. Since the smelter ceased operation on the amalgamated Lake Tyee Copper Company, Osborne Bay has been chiefly known as a boming ground for the Requimalt & Nanaimo Railway, which dumps its logs from Cowichan Bay. Crofton being connected by a spur line with the main line at Westholme.

Owing to the fact that the property has already been developed for industrial purposes, a townsite has already been made, and there are a number of buildings already on the townsite.

PESSIMISM ON OLD COUNTRY IS RIDICULED

Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill Says Never Was It Better in Health, Wealth or Education

THOUSANDS HEAR GREAT ADDRESS

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 20.—Ideals of the British Empire in its progress and present-day problems were vividly portrayed here tonight when Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, former Chancellor of the Exchequer in the Baldwin Government, addressed thousands of Winnipeg citizens Mr. Churchill was realistic in his concerning the present-day status of the British Empire. The Mother Country, regardless of the majority of the people, was not down and out, he declared.

STRENGTH GROWING

"Britain," he asserted, "is steadily growing in wealth, health, power and prosperity. Never was a time of such prosperity. There was no pessimistic reports of the situation. The Rt. Hon. Chancellor said: "There is nothing which should lead anyone to believe these reports are true. The miners are the symbols of the power of our race man power and endurance."

The "Jack" he described, in the words of Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, as "the most perfect scheme for the support of unemployed in any state or country."

Maintenance of peace he cited as the greatest interest of Great Britain today. "It is the place, it is our object and our aim," he warned against alarmist propaganda. Alarmist propaganda would frighten British statesmen and even the people into abandoning their rights.

Mr. Churchill reiterated his opinion on the proposed Egyptian treaty and the Singapore naval base. Singapore was simply a base designed to safeguard contact with Australia and New Zealand. It was no threat to any nation, "least of all to our ally, Japan."

STATESMEN SEARCH FOR YARDSTICK

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald Reports Progress in Conversation on Disarmaments

U.S. MAY AGREE TO POLICE CRUISERS

LOSSIEMOUTH, Scotland, Aug. 20.—Progress in the search for a yardstick to measure Anglo-American naval strength was reported today by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald.

"A world conference, say a resumption of the Washington disarmament conference, before 1931, is a date now fixed for it, is at the back of our minds all the time," said Mr. MacDonald.

"We have been working all the time at the problem which hitherto has baffled representatives of both countries.

"As at the Geneva naval conference, our task has been to reconcile three positions. American claims for parity, which we admit. British necessities which have no relation at all to the American building, and the desire common to both Governments, the reduction of armaments. The second point mentioned by Mr. MacDonald is that determined by British Empire relations and responsibilities.

NOT BATTLE WEAPONS

LONDON, Aug. 21.—In connection with the statement yesterday of Premier MacDonald on the disarmament conversations, which was given great prominence in the morning papers today, The Daily News says it understands the United States may be prepared to give sympathetic consideration to the British idea of employing a certain number of cruisers for police work as distinct from battle weapons.

DELEGATES TO SPEND FRIDAY IN VICTORIA

Mayor Anscomb Will Bring Chartered Accountants From Convention at Vancouver

WILL LOOK INTO AIRPORT MATTER

Mayor Anscomb left last night for Vancouver on a dual mission. In the first place it is his intention to see Flight-Lieutenant McLean at the Jericho Beach Air Station, and discuss the matter of the seaplane base for Victoria.

Today and tomorrow he will attend the Canadian Chartered Accountants' Association of Chartered Accountants convention, opened yesterday in Vancouver, and at which about 300 delegates are expected to be present.

On Thursday night he will bring delegates to Victoria to spend Friday in the city. The party will breakfast at the Empress Hotel on Friday morning, and then, if time permits, they will be taken for a motor trip through the Malahat, and "wherever else," said the Colwood Club completing the afternoon's programme.

At 7.30 in the evening an informal dinner will be given at the Empress Hotel by the Victoria members of the association, at which Premier Tolmie will be one of the speakers.

VANCOUVER, Aug. 20.—Leading members of the Canadian Association of Chartered Accountants assembled at the Hotel Vancouver this morning for their twenty-seventh annual convention. They were cordially welcomed to the city by Mayor W. H. Malkin.

Lord Queenborough Comes to City in Course of Tour Studying Canada as an Investment Field

FEELS OPTIMISTIC ABOUT ENTERPRISES

On a mission that is fraught with very great possibilities, so far as British investment in the Dominion of Canada is concerned, Lord Queenborough, financier and man of great business interests, reached the city of Victoria yesterday. He leaves this morning for a trip up Vancouver Island.

Lord Queenborough is a firm believer in the idea of the unity of the Empire, and by that he means reciprocal assistance among the parts of that great Commonwealth in the advancement of the welfare of the whole.

Interviewed by the Colonist on his mission to the country, he frankly admitted that he favored the investment of British capital within the bounds of the Empire wherever this was possible with the opportunities of advantage to the investor. A man of business himself, he realizes that there are two sides to the proposition of investing money. There must follow advantages to be derived from the investment if the investor is to put his earnings into enterprises.

STUDYING INVESTMENTS

His mission to Canada is to investigate what the opportunities are in this country for the investing of capital from the Motherland. While he did not say what his advice would be on his return, it appeared in the tone of the visitor was one of greatest optimism with respect to opportunities for capital in Canada.

High Tribute to Bliss Carman Is Paid at Service

FREDERICTON, N.B., Aug. 20.—Eulogizing the late Bliss Carman, Canada's famous poet and Fredericton's gifted son, at the state memorial service at Christ Church Cathedral this afternoon, prior to the interment of the poet's ashes in Carman family plot at Forest Hill Very Rev. Dean Orwell Neale, of Fredericton, declared that the uncrowned poet laureate born of that sterling stock of Loyalist ancestry who ever stood for high principle and truth was more Canadian than had learned it, had behind him, through the Fatherhood of God a rich heritage of priceless privileges and worth, a splendid temple of integrity and honor." When the ashes were committed to the tomb after a simple but impressive procession, prayers were offered by the Dean and Carman's poems set to music was sung in the cathedral.

MR THOMAS FRANK WITH CANADIANS

Dominion Buys Three Times as Much From United States as Is Bought From Great Britain

WOULD ALLEVIATE MUCH SUFFERING

Purchasing by Canadians in Old Country Would Help Solve One of Its Greatest Problems

MONTREAL, Aug. 20.—Canadians, according to the Right Hon. J. H. Thomas, might derive considerable satisfaction from the knowledge that they would be making a substantial contribution to the alleviation of suffering and unemployment among Great Britain's men employed by purchasing a larger proportion of their requirements from that country.

"We buy over 50 per cent of your wheat," he declared in an interview here tonight, "and it is not given to us either. On the other hand, you are buying three times as much from the United States in raw and manufactured products as you are purchasing from us. If our people's spending power could be increased it would mean much toward the solution of our present problem."

NOT GIVING ADVICE

Great Britain's Lord Privy Seal and Minister of Unemployment arrived here early this afternoon from Ottawa. Mr. Thomas made it perfectly clear that he did not wish to give advice to Canadians, or to tell them what they should do. "Nothing could do more harm than for a statesman to travel the Empire and to interfere or dictate to the government of the day," he said.

During his stay in Ottawa Mr. Thomas was in conference with the Premier and with all members of the cabinet who were in the capital.

Questioned as to the principal topics under discussion the British minister replied that such subjects as emigration, an Empire economic conference and better trade relations within the Empire were all brought forward for consideration. He explained that satisfactory progress had been made.

MADE CONCRETE PROPOSALS

As to concrete proposals, Mr. Thomas intimated that such as has had made were quite acceptable to the Canadian Government. Regarding the British method of dealing with those coming to this country, he emphasized the fact, however, that nothing was calculated to do more harm to both sides. Indeed to permanent injury to the programme of emigration than to discuss it as a solution of the British unemployment problem. Any such suspicion existing in the minds of Canadians might be cast aside, he declared.

Broaching the subject of trade within the Empire, Mr. Thomas said: "I think the problem of our employed at home could be greatly materially by larger purchases being made in the Old Country. That is a practical step and, in my opinion, is one I am applying myself to this subject at the moment."

Island Now Free of All Forest Fire

All forest fires on Vancouver Island and over Coastal regions of British Columbia are either completely extinguished or under control, according to J. O. MacDonald, of the British Columbia Forest Service. Mr. MacDonald states that no new fires have started throughout the Vancouver district and that heavy aided the fire fighters in Prince Rupert district. The Vancouver district are now comparatively safe from new fire outbreaks as a result of the rainfall, which has fallen during the past week. The fire hazard to the coastal regions, it is stated.

FERTILIZER PLANT SITE IS ACQUIRED

of San Francisco, one of the purchasers who will interest California capital in the enterprise.

Originally the property was considered by the late Hon. James Dunsmuir before Ladysmith was established for the purpose of building owing to its tidal facilities.

FINE WATERFRONT

The estate has over 1,700 feet of waterfront, and runs back nearly a mile and a half. It is well timbered and has a good water supply from the lakes on the eastern boundary of the property. It is from this supply that Mr. A. B. Watson has an application to the Water Board, seeking a record for the use of the proposed industries.

On the property are located a number of buildings formerly used by the smelter, some of which can be used for housing the plant. Mr. Arthur Coles, of this city, was commissioned by Mr. A. B. Watson about two years ago to find a suitable site for the proposed plant. He looked over forty-five different sites on the East Coast, and also on the Gulf Islands. He failed, however, to find conditions satisfying his requirements until the Crofton property was offered.

AMPLE CAPITAL

It is proposed to capitalize the company at $200,000, and from what Mr. Kenneth Watson says, there will be a considerable amount of California money available for this enterprise.

In connection with the other suggested industries, inquiries have sought to accomplish this very object. Investments of Britishers are being sought in this country, which would work to the reciprocal advantage of the investor and the borrower.

INVESTMENTS ACROSS LINE

In some instances where underlaking have been undertaken, there would be investments made to some extent in the United States. With that country Lord Queenborough had had long connection in a business way, and he felt that as a branch of the Anglo-Saxon race that country's interests and those of the British Empire were very closely associated.

At the same time the great object to be accomplished at the present time was to develop within the British Empire conditions that would make for the stability of the nation.

About forty years ago, when he was a young man, Lord Queenborough said, he had paid a short visit to Victoria, coming up from Seattle to take a look at that city. Some had wrought wonderful changes, as it had with the whole of Canada in the intervening time.

The visitor is a typical British business man. He has a wide vision gained by intercourse with the whole world, and through association with big business in all climes. He is a son of the late General Lord Alfred Henry Paget.

Spending a number of years in the United States during his younger manhood, he was engaged in cattle ranching and farming in the West. Later he lived in New York before going back to his native land. In 1910 he entered Parliament for the Cambridge seat, and was prominently identified with political life for years.

He is now devoting some time to the strengthening through the avenues of finance the unity of the Empire, which he feels is a mission of prime importance at the present time.

ENTERTAINED AT LUNCHEON

Yesterday at noon he was the guest at a private luncheon at the Union Club given by Mr. H. B. Thomson, at which there was also as joint guest Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, the vice-president of the Canadian Securities Corporation. Lord Queenborough is a director of the Third Canadian General Investment Trust.

There was present as well at the luncheon Colonel J. A. Clark, M.P. for Burrard-Vancouver, who has just been made manager for British Columbia of the London and Western Trust, of which Mr. Meighen is the vice-president.

Following the luncheon the visitors were guests of Premier Tolmie on a visit to the Victoria Exhibition. Last evening they were guests of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor at a dinner given in their honor.

This morning the party left for a trip up the Island. They will lunch at Nanaimo, and then attend a dinner in the evening at Courtenay.

culated to impress Canada with the importance of his mission.

Canada had been buying increasing quantities of fruit and her export had been reducing.

"Why," he questioned, "have dumping provision not yet been invoked by the Government against the surplus products of fruits and vegetables which are being thrown into this country, just at the time our own products are ripe and ready to be marketed?"

Mr. Bennett recalled incidents of strawberries, asparagus and other fruits and vegetables being dumped into our markets to the injury of our own fruit and vegetable producers.

Grote Stirling, member for Yale, recalled the "manner in which the Postmaster-General, Mr. Veniot, had exercised patronage" and reviewed the circumstances in connection with the appointment of a postmaster at Oliver, discussed in Parliament last session.

"Wherever a man's treasure is there will his heart be also." Adapting the words to a modern form he stated "that where a man's investment was there would he be interested.

"We must endeavor to keep our investments as far as possible within the Empire," he said.

He then went on to point out that the war, with the terrible results which it brought, had upset the trend of business. Money had gone in various directions as a result of that catastrophe, but it was evident now that the parts of the Empire become bound more closely together again in the bonds which would make for a great imperial unit.

The purpose of the financial corporation, which he represented, and which brought him throughout the length of Canada, was one that sought to accomplish this very object. Investments of Britishers were being sought in this country, which would work to the reciprocal advantage of the investor and the borrower.

Seek Outlet For Mexican Fruit in B.C.

Mr. George Hull, formerly a resident of the Province of British Columbia, but who now is in charge of a large area on the West Coast of Mexico which is held by a company of American capitalists, is in the city, accompanied by his wife. They have taken a holiday trip by automobile from the South and will spend a few days in the city.

During his stay here, it is the intention of Mr Hull to interview the Premier, Hon. S. F. Tolmie, for the purpose of seeing if something cannot be arranged so that tropical fruits from his parts of Mexico cannot be brought into this province with advantage to the residents of British Columbia, and also reciprocally to the growers of Mexico.

Greater Use of Pulverized Coal Is Proposition

VANCOUVER, Aug. 20.—Before a large gathering of distinguished engineers and mining men, at the special luncheon of the Mining Institute here today, William N. Kelly, consulting engineer and mining surveyor, Vancouver, described the development of the pulverized coal industry throughout the world.

Coal consumption in British Columbia has been falling off in recent years, due to the increasing use of California fuel oil, and in view of the size of the coal mining industry in this province, the opportunities in the uses of pulverized coal should be of first importance to colliery people, said Mr. Kelly. It would pay industrial consumers of coal products to experiment and enter into the field of research as to the possibilities of pulverized coal, Mr. Kelly stated. Results obtained would justify expenditures in the view of efficiency.

RESIDENTS ARE REASSURED ON FUTURE ACTION

No Intention by Government to Disturb Status Quo Regarding Univers ty Endowment Lands

SPANISH BANKS FUTURE DISCUSSED

Following up reports which have been circulating in Vancouver that there was possible that a change in the administration of the lands within the University endowment area would be changed and handed over to the city of Vancouver instead of being left with the Government under the Department of Lands, a delegation reached the capital yesterday to raise a protest against any such change.

When they met the Minister of Lands, Hon. F. P. Burden, the delegation was informed that their fears were unfounded, inasmuch as the matter was not being discussed. The minister informed them that before anything would be done along this line the people affected, those living upon the land and paying rates under the present arrangement, would be given the opportunity of being heard.

At the same time the delegation took up the matter of the freeshore proposals in the vicinity of Spanish Banks. A very definite answer was given the delegation by the minister on this point. It was stated to the members of the delegation that the carrying out of the gigantic plan which was suggested in this connection would not be disposed of without careful consideration, and there would be ample time afforded those interested to be heard before anything was done.

The delegation from the University endowment lands was composed of Mr. F. L. Reid, K.C., Mr. E. P. Davis, K.C., and Rev. Principal Vance.

Timber Scaling Report Shows Marked Increase

The timber scaling in the Province of British Columbia for the month of July shows a grand total of 262,231,231 feet board measure, 4,994,716 lineal feet, 13,724 cords and 219,581 hewn ties.

This is decidedly in excess of the scaling for the same month a year ago, when there was shown the following: 225,096,664 feet board measure; 3,614,529 lineal feet, 16,625 cords, and 196,600 hewn ties. It will be noted that last year during the month of July the scaling was larger in the various lines with the exception of the sawn lumber line of action. The aggregate, however, was essentially lower than this year.

The showing for the month of July fell below that of June of the present year, when the total was 280,992,236 feet board measure, 3,559,232 lineal feet, 17,270 cords, and 208,309 hewn ties.

The totals for the year so far with the ending of the month of July show the following: 1,277,021,418 feet board measure, 19,186,189 lineal feet, 103,781 cords and 2,313,237 hewn ties.

Greater Attractions at Willows Exhibition Win Enthusiasm of Visitors

The joy Zone, the glorious centre of amusement for young and old, is the biggest ever held in Victoria. Crown-ups and children have crowded to take part in the many interesting features and sideshows, a big Ferris wheel is proving irresistible to hundreds of youngsters, while noisy Ferris wheel gives a thrill to the tiny tots. The merry-go-round is a great attraction. The Lindy dip, the Lindy seaplane, the whip and the glider are but a few of the wonderful amusements of the midway.

Yesterday was the first performance of the two singers, Mr. Al Moyer, master of ceremonies of the Winter Garden Revue, and Miss Kathleen Kirk (Miss Philadelphia, 1928), subrette, of the same company. These artists gave two songs apiece in the Main Building and also in the Manufacturers' Building. The entertainment will be repeated every afternoon.

The horse show judging also began yesterday.

The Provincial Fair was visited by Lord Queenborough, accompanied by Premier Tolmie and Mr. H. B. Thomson. Lord Queenborough was conducted through the grounds and expressed great interest and admiration for all the many exhibits he saw. In conversation with Mr W. H. Mearns, the secretary, he remarked that in England it is customary for every one, of every status to visit and take an interest in exhibitions of this kind.

THE HORSE SHOW

Last night hundreds of pleasure seekers who took their places in the grandstand at exactly 7 o'clock were treated to a splendid show in the horse ring. An area before the grandstand was enclosed and in this the horses were ridden and driven. The first item was the judging of the thoroughbred ponies, which were led by their respective owners. Next was the judging of the hackney classes and they made an impressive sight as they were led, trotted and cantered before the judges, tossing heads and centre hoofs forming an endless chain of movement under the floodlights. The ring was cleared again, then, to the accompaniment of a spontaneous burst of applause, the saddle-horse classes trotted into the enclosure. Round and round they drove, every hoofs-beat piece of metal in the harness and wagons gleaming as silver and gold. One team, the wagon and hams outlined with small lights, made a special impressive show. This competition will be stayed nightly through the week until the final judging on Saturday evening.

After an intermission, during which the Winter Garden Revue gave an exhibition of splendid singing and dancing, the jumping contest was announced. Seven competitors entered this class, and the crowds were given a splendid spectacle of perfect horsemanship and performance.

Beauty Dominates Scene In Main Fair Building

Flowers, Fruit and Vegetables Show Steady Improvement in Grade and Quality—Judging Is Completed in All Sections of Horticulture

Gardens, fields and orchards in Victoria and its environs have given of their best to help make the British Columbia Agricultural Association's annual show at the Willows one to be remembered and talked of for a long time to come in the main building. Beauty dominates the scene on view, one can spend a number of profitable hours getting acquainted with the possibilities of this favored section in the horticultural and agricultural lines. Soil that will produce flowers, fruits, vegetables and cereals of the quality and excellence of those on display in the big flag-draped building is worth telling the world about.

Entering the main doorway, the eye is first attracted by the riot of color made by the flowers exhibited. A by amateur growers as well as professional gardeners. In this section the gladiolus is strongly featured, and it is here that it shows to advantage in many varieties. For this show an entirely new specimen is exhibited by Mr. Duncan McTavish, and is called Comte Koehl. The bloom of this flower is of a deep red and it is of unusual size.

Dahlias are much in evidence, too. Brown Bombers display several beauties among a nice collection which is well set off by a white lattice fence in front of a dark wall background and more bedecked ground scheme. Dahlias are prominent, shown in the display of the Capital Dahlia Gardens, many huge and beautiful blooms being on exhibition.

Sweet peas give of their fragrance to enhance the floral extras, and are many and varied; while entirely different but not the less lovely are decorative are the rock and alpine plants exhibited by the Rockbolme Gardens. These are set out on an incline, representing a hillside and show very effectively. A creditable display is also that of the Layritz Nurseries, with a large number of potted plants features.

DEPARTMENT DISPLAY

The Department of Agriculture has an interesting display of seeds, honey and fruits, and an extremely interesting corner of the building is one occupied by the Dominion Government, Entomological Branch, where myriad insects are displayed, all of which are the inveterate enemies of the man who tries to grow produce of any kind.

Eggs and poultry are given prominence by the Barred Columbia Egg Pool. This organization occupies a stall at the rear end of the building, where information is disseminated to all interested.

The fruit, vegetable and fruit section displays a very full line of garden, field and orchard products, and the judges had no sinecure in awarding the prizes in these three classes, the exhibits of the majority showing being highly creditable. In the field and root classes contained winners were T. R. Harper, A. Tyrrell and G. Hiet, who won a number of firsts and seconds between them. Winners of a number of classes for potatoes, Bradbury & Hanson had some fine displays. W. G. Burch was a good second. Another exhibitor who did well in the root section was H. Pitell, who won first prize for the best collection.

GARDEN PRODUCE

In the garden produce O. Burch and T. Atkey were heavy winners. In the fruit awards Atkey got several firsts, as did also W. J. Jennings, R. Beyer, J. A. Coatham and G. Fagerberg. All these had a large number of prizes and shared many firsts and seconds.

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. E. Leonhardt found the remedy and called his prescription HEM-ROID. He tried it in 1,000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 98 per cent, and then decided it should be sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from MacFarlane Drug Co., Vancouver Drug Co. today. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands and will do the same for you, or costs you nothing. (Adv.)

CITIZENS' DAY

The Provincial Exhibition, now in full swing and lasting for the rest of the week, should attract its largest attendance today. This is Citizens' Day, when a special appeal is made to the civic patriotism of Victorians and those of nearby communities interested in agricultural and industrial development. The exhibits this year are better than usual. The demand for space has been greater. Once again it has been proved that the accommodation afforded at the Willows Grounds is too small. The present exhibition, like its immediate predecessor, is an intimation to the people of Victoria that they should be prepared to add to the facilities at the Willows, and in doing so make this annual exhibition an even greater advertisement of our resources than it is.

Mayor Ancomb has outlined the desire of the City Council, and his own particular wish, to increase the accommodation at the exhibition grounds. He says it is proposed, with this in view, to put a by-law to the citizens to provide the money for the desirable expenditure. When the by-law is ready, as it will be next December, the citizens, with the experience they have had during the last few years, will, we have no doubt, be prepared to vote the necessary funds. It may be hoped, too, that the Provincial Government, always interested in provincial exhibitions, will make a substantial grant. This should mean that the greater facilities so much in demand will be available for the exhibition of 1930. The provision of them will be entirely in line with civic growth which has received such a notable impetus during the present year.

All our citizens are aware of the hard work entailed in making arrangements for such an exhibition as is now in progress. In the results achieved the highest credit belongs to Mr. W. H. Munsie, the president of the British Columbia Agricultural Association, and Mr. W. H. Mearns, the very capable and enthusiastic secretary. They have been unceasing in their efforts, and that they have done so well with the limited facilities at their disposal gives an excellent idea of what they could do were the accommodation what it should be in a city of this size. The best way in which our citizens can show their appreciation of the exhibition and reward the gratifying results achieved by the board of directors is by attending at the Willows during the present week. Today especially there should be a great effort on the part of the people to give that support which makes such an annual affair a complete success. Citizens' Day can each year be made a landmark in civic development by showing a rising tide of desire to foster industrial development by taking a more and more widespread interest annually in the exhibits staged at the Willows. It is to be hoped that Victorians and others in the vicinity will rise to the occasion and reward the energies displayed, and so apparent, in the exhibition here this year.

CHURCH UNITY IN INDIA

The Orient, almost the last to receive Christianity, may yet show the Western world a path to church unity. Just now the church leaders throughout the world, and particularly in Great Britain, are giving special attention to a proposed experiment in church union in South India, which goes farther than any previous attempt. After ten years of conference the South India United Church, which is composed mainly of Presbyterians and Congregationalists, along with the Wesleyan Methodists and the Anglicans have come to a unanimous agreement upon a basis of union. Their action will be reviewed next year by the English Wesleyan Conference and by the Lambeth Conference of world Anglicans. Approval by these authorities will ensure the launching of the new church.

The most announced step taken by the South Indian Christians in the basis of union is in agreement upon the vexing question of the ordination of the ministry and the consequent authority to administer the sacraments. In this matter Bangalore, where the agreement was made, has gone beyond Lausanne and its notable World Conference on Faith and Order. It also implements what has up to this point in England been confined to exploratory conversations between the Anglicans and Free Churchmen. On the one hand the Indian Anglicans have accepted as valid the ordination of the Free Churches, that is, by means of presbytery and without bishop. On the other hand the Wesleyans, Presbyterians and Congregationalists have accepted episcopacy as a form of church government. Duly ordained ministers of the uniting communions will enter on full equality, but at the end of thirty years the united church will decide as to whether it will become wholly episcopal in having candidates for the ministry ordained only by bishops.

As might be expected the scheme is being attacked by members of both sides in the Old Land. The Freechurchmen maintain that under this plan the historic principle is abandoned which sees ordination in the general body of the ministry. The stricter Anglicans on the other hand, criticize their Indian brethren for departing, as they say, from the Catholic tradition which makes episcopacy essential to ordination and the resultant right to dispense the sacraments. The sponsors in India in reply claim that Christian people in uncharitable lands are perforce drawn into closer fellowship than in the homelands, and also that the immensity of Hinduism tends to drive them into a self-protecting cohesion. This demands sacrifice of much that is traditional in the interests of a spiritual fellowship which must express itself in organic unity. The movement will be watched with interest. It seems that the Western churches have much to learn from the indigenous Christians of the mission fields, and that the Scripture which says that "the last shall be first" applies to the countries that but lately received the Christian gospel.

FALLACIES IN STATISTICS

Statistics, whatever their value, exercise a fascination on the public mind. Sometimes there is error in the conclusions deduced from them but people are willing to accept such findings with a credulity worthy of a better cause. It has been "established" recently that Canadians consume more butter and more eggs per capita than the people of any other country in the world. Whether there are healthier reasons for this is not known. There are countries which have a higher birth rate and a lower death rate than the Dominion. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics has now issued figures to show that Canada is drinking less liquors than in the pre-war days when, however, is in line with nearly every other country.

Canada's liquor consumption, statistics say, has dropped from 1.103 gallons per capita before the war to .435 gallons for the fiscal year of 1927-1928. The consumption of malt beverages in the same period has dropped from 7.556 gallons to 6.070 gallons. On the other hand, the consumption of wines rose from .134 gallons to .479 gallons. The increase has been mainly due to greater wine consumption in Quebec. It is only right to point out that these figures are probably entirely erroneous, so far as they deal with Canadian consumption, because our authorities do not appear to have any means of discriminating between what tourists drink and what our citizens imbibe. There has been a heavy growth in the tourist traffic, so that all per capita figures about liquor consumption take tourists into account as well and do not give a fair estimate, or anything like a fair estimate, of the per capita consumption of Canadians.

It may be mentioned that tourists and other visitors to the country are also consumers of both butter and eggs, so that there is a possibility of error in saying that Canadians are the greatest per capita consumers of these commodities. It is in this particular, in dealing with a country which covers so large a territory and has such varied climates, that the conclusions reached on the basis of the consumption of any particular commodity are likely to be misleading. Tourists may visit the country and their per capita consumption of any commodity, and particularly of liquor is, for the time of their stay, probably greater than that of the people of the country. If, in the matter of liquor, real facts are to be ascertained, the Federal Government should keep some place a part segregating purchases made by tourists from those made by the people of Canada. This would probably never be done, and so the figures of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics will continue to create an erroneous impression.

TRIUMPH OF SCIENCE

We yield to no man, woman or child in our reverence for science in general and in particular. We can say, "Wonderful!" as often and loudly as the next fellow. Therefore, when we see a big picture in the paper and read a long story about how science has succeeded in taking Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut from Lake Titicaca and putting him down on the Capitol grounds so that he may attend the inaugural of the financial committee, when we see and read all that, we do feel exactly like the man who went into ecstasies over the marvels of science when the fellowship that he drank got "Yes, the man in the Bananas" from the station in Kokomo.—Baltimore Sun.

THE YOUNG PLAN

Only by making sacrifices was it possible for any kind of settlement to be reached, and, as usual, Great Britain was expected to make the biggest sacrifices of all. There is a limit, however, to the endurance of even patient John Bull. He has rebelled against the unfairness—the injustice—of overburdening playing the role of the Good Samaritan to the other nations, now that they are in a position to take care of themselves.—Hamilton Spectator.

Letters to the Editor

CANADA AND JAPAN

Sir—The fact that Canada has reached the stage of national development when it becomes necessary to send her own representatives as ministers to foreign countries should give a certain satisfaction to the Dominion. No matter what may be the opinion of us people here at Ottawa these developments must be provided for, and if we are to have an efficient diplomatic service that will command respect abroad, its officers should be placed above party and secure from insecurity in the civil service, otherwise there will be no incentive for men of ability to prepare themselves for this service, and merit, corruption and the spoils system in time undermine the whole system.

Perhaps it would be well to establish the principle that all such appointments as foreign ministers should previously be mentioned to the leader of the Opposition.

Hon. Mr. Bennett has been touring British Columbia previous to sailing for Japan, and I have no doubt they already know in Japan many of the things he has been saying here, and have formed an opinion of the representative Canada is sending to them. But I have noticed that no mention has been made of a most vital subject to British Columbia, and one which interests us here irrespective of party politics, namely the presence of so many Japanese immigrants.

It may be diplomatic not to mention this, but if one thinks that the Japanese statesmen are shrewd, far-seeing, and reasonable men, and it is useless for us to shut our eyes to Control-Hell and declare there is no Control-Hell.

If we would build up a lasting friendship and trade with the Japanese for international goodwill, it would be fine to remove by clear and firm statements tending towards future friction or misapprehension.

As an economic question, so long as it remains about the cheapest to cost to satisfy the standard of living of the Canadian, as it does the Asiatic, there is sure to be resentment and perhaps bitter hatred engendered, because of the unfair competition which this will cause.

We should welcome to our country the Japanese manufacturer's agent, the wholesale merchant, the tourist, the diplomat, etc., but we should let it be known in kindly terms that competition in the labor market, the fishing, the retail, and the growing and farming markets is resented by our people as being unfair and undesirable.

I feel certain that if this question were placed before the leading statesmen of Japan, and they were told that it is an economic necessity for the working classes of Canada that that unequal competition be gradually abolished, they will see a just compromise.

On the other hand we should recognize the hard pressure which forces Japanese statesmen to seek new outlets for their overcrowded surplus population, and we should be as fair-minded, a friendly sympathetic (relative) spirit towards our neighbors in all our dealings. We admire their many good qualities.

HARASSING A GOVERNMENT

Sir—Permit me to find a little space in your columns to publish the letter written to me in the hope that it may help to clarify a situation which is growing more serious throughout the Province of British Columbia.

There are many nonpolitical societies and associations which have the avowed purpose of enlightening and uplifting humanity, and for such an all-praiseworthy cause they so rightly deserve the fullest help of all communities wherein they operate.

There are also many political organizations which are empowered to suggest recommendations to the Governments and parties they represent.

Knowingly or otherwise, in more or less degree, the many societies and associations vie with each other in urging the power of representation upon the many political organizations, thus influencing even the letters of the government to act without reserve upon the necessary recommendations from their organizations.

It would seem only the right and proper thing to do for any government, in particular our present Provincial Government, in view of the fact that it is now prosecuting necessary investigations as to the efficiency, overstaffing, etc., of its myriads of employees, to adopt and rigidly enforce some system along lines as follows:

Vacant positions to be filled should be given the widest publicity, so that aspiring applicants will have every opportunity to compete, and the applications before the different organizations for their consideration and recommendation should be treated in the following order as to preference, always provided that efficiency through any cause whatever is in no way depleted:

First class applicants—(a) Actual war veterans, actually supporting the greatest number of dependents; (b) persons actually supporting the greatest number of dependents.

Second class applicants—(a) Actual war veterans, single; (b) persons, married.

Third class applicants—(a) Actual war veterans, single; (b) persons, single.

It is quite possible for a single person to enter the first class, and if needless to say, the organization will fully check the entry as to validity and if found to be invalid will naturally eliminate it altogether.

When the Government wants a school teacher it advertises the fact; then why not so for all the Government position?

It seems to me any member of a Government would be well advised to refuse his or her influence in favor of any voter seeking employment. As a matter of fact why should any member usurp the power of the organizations created for his or her benefit and welfare, thus directly causing more or less antagonism against the whole Government.

One of the main factors in the defeat of the last Provincial regime (Liberal) was the method adopted in appointing employees; said, if the cap fits, wear it. Surely, if any of the present Provincial Government, is well behaved to co-operate to extend a little friendly advice as to future appointments.

By the way, these remarks are not based upon supposition, but on direct information as to conditions in the Capital.

Politics is not an evil until partial procedure is practiced by one or more, including the desire of ignorance.

H. P. WINSBY.

Woman Has Won A Place for Herself In Business World

By PETRONILLA CLAYTON

The business girl has become a normal adjunct to modern life. Men have resented woman's advent into the business field. They regarded her as an interloper and her anxiety to prove herself a mere feminine within would pass as the grey tired of her new found independence. The war of competition grew intense and the ambitious girl, but it was predicted that she would disappear directly the war was over. Men stayed home.

Business women have been subjected to a great deal of criticism, not always favorable. Whether they deserve it or not is hard to say. It all depends on the girl.

There are three kinds of business girls. The girl who goes into an office because she wants an occupation or pocket money. She is very often the daughter of well-to-do people and has never been actually stinted, therefore she is certainly not indispensable.

Then there is the girl who takes up office work because she is poor and it offers her a chance to have better time, meet men and eventually marry. She does her work well and probably just as she is getting into the full swing of it she leaves and her employer has to find and train another stenographer.

And lastly there is the girl who takes her career as a profession, who chooses to make it the sole occupation of her life, whether married or single. She is not concerned with the number in decreasing. Women are not supposed to be able to keep themselves in their work like men, but a good many of them are able to do so.

Taking it all round the stenographer is indispensable in business life today. She does very necessary work for less wages than a man would if she were not indispensable, why do all business men employ female stenographers? I wished when my son of an outery would be made if all the women in offices removed themselves in a body?

No! Woman has made herself extremely necessary in the business world and she has created a place for herself that no one but she can fill.

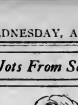
Jots From Science



RICHARD March Hoe, to whom the world owes a debt of gratitude for his invention of the rotary printing press, was born in New York in 1812. He was related in his father's ancestry to Peter Cooper and with his brothers, made such progress in the new business, that their buildings were erected and more men employed in the shops of Hoe & Company. In 1846 Hoe evolved the "lightning" rotary press, which abolished the old flat bed press, using instead a bed and quickly cast cylindrical plates, through which the paper ran at high speed to receive its impression. Hoe became a wealthy man. He died in Italy in 1886.

LABOR CONGRESS AND COMMUNISM

Discussion on "Red" Menace at Cowichan Meeting at Belfast Regarded as Very Important

BELFAST, Aug. 20.—One of the most important resolutions before the Trades Union Congress here next month will be the report of the Communist menace within the trades union movement. The report made by a committee, is long and detailed and the general conclusion is:

"With the exception of one or two cases, there is no element instigated by the Communists and national movement is having less and diminishing influence. There appears no doubt whatever," the report goes on, "that the Communist and minority movement activity does mitigate against not only retention of members, but especially against enrolling of new members within the unions. The Communist and minority movement appears to have done more harm than good to the unions which had not thought it advisable in the early stages to check Communist activity in their branches and districts."

HONEY EXHIBITS ARE EXCELLENT

Progress in Apiculture Is Shown at Exhibition—Observation Hives Are Interesting

One of the outstanding exhibits in the main building at the Willows Fair is that of the Island beekeepers. They are making a representative showing of honey and beeswax, and judging from the number and variety of exhibits entered in the various districts, the Island is a honey producing region. Even in observation hives are attracting the attention of visitors and any remarks and explanations get a ready and interested audience. Our bee is in full working order condition and contains a full energy, including drones, workers, drones, brood and honey. Very appetizing, too, is the fluid produced in honey. Comb honey in glass jars filled with extracted honey attracts a good deal of attention by its delicious appearance, while the appearance of the generally called fruit cakes and amusing remarks. It is not generally known that all pure honey granulates, the prevalent idea being that it is "honey" when it does. This is not the case, and it is because of this erroneous idea that this is the best way of serving honey, besides being the natural condition of all pure honey when a short time out of the hive. The majority of awards in this class went to exhibitors from Cowichan.

KODIAK, Alaska, Aug. 20.—This season has been a successful one for small fishermen of Kodiak, the oldest in Westward Alaska, it became apparent today. The salmon pack of the Kodiak district, including seven canneries, is estimated at only go to half a million cases, including August 15, with a possibility of 100 500 more cases before the close of the season. Numerous small boats have been the main catch so far. The fishermen now are looking for silver salmon.

ENVOY URGES ANGLO-FRENCH CO-OPERATION

Hon. Jean Knight, French Envoy to Canada, Addresses Joint Luncheon at Empress Hotel

HIS HONOR SPEAKS OF RED LETTER DAY

Yesterday, at a joint luncheon meeting of the Canadian and Kiwanis Clubs, held in the banquet room of the Empress Hotel, a most inspiring address upon "Co-operation between France and the British Empire," was given by Hon. Jean Knight, French Envoy Extraordinary to Canada. Among those present at the luncheon were His Honor Lieutenant-Governor R. Randolph Bruce, Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Federal Minister of Agriculture, and M. T. Buor, French Consul for Western Canada.

ENTHUSIASTICALLY RECEIVED

M. Knight, who was received with the greatest applause, said that there was no subject closer to his heart than that upon which he was about to speak. "Because of my British origin," he remarked whimsically, "I owe my very existence to French and British co-operation."

Relations between the two countries, he said, had not been so good as they might have been in days gone by, he said, but the value of co-operation had never been more clearly demonstrated than by the action of the late King Edward VII in bringing about the Entente Cordiale. He spoke in enthusiastic terms of the late sovereign, who, he said, had the advantage of many years of experience as "a man among men," before assuming the responsibilities of the throne. The result was that, since the year 1902 there had been no serious argument between the ministers of the two countries. The speaker spoke of the frequent visits to France of the then Prince of Wales, of his popularity with the people of France, and of the splendid work done by Lord Lansdowne, at that time Secretary for Foreign Affairs, in fostering good feeling between the two countries.

France and Great Britain, he went on, had consistently striven to avert the coming of the late war. Particularly during the first and second Balkan Wars, when Europe was living over a charge of dynamite, the diplomats of the two nations had been working together to avoid the catastrophe which threatened.

NO WRITTEN AGREEMENT

"There has never been any written agreement between France and Britain," continued M. Knight, "and this, in my opinion, consequently a decided advantage, since it eliminates all side-bound limitations. However that may be, the alliance proved so strong that, two days after France had been forced into war with Germany, Great Britain was also at war." The friendship of the two nations, he added, had now been finally and absolutely sealed by a mutual sacrifice of life, and the only hatred common to Britain and France was a hatred of war itself. This had been manifested at Geneva, after the two countries had worked side by side for the League of Nations at Geneva, just as they had done in Flanders during the four years of the Great War.

ECONOMIC CO-OPERATION

Co-operation, however, should not be confined merely to warfare and international politics, said M. Knight. It should also be carried into the field of economics. As an instance he cited the building of the Suez Canal, long looked upon as a dream by engineers. It had taken a Frenchman ten years to persuade the world that the canal could be built, and the result was of enormous economic value to Great Britain.

There should also, he said, be intellectual co-operation between the Anglo-Saxon and Latin types of culture. "Canada," remarked the speaker, "has had the privilege of inheriting the cultures of what I consider to be the two leading types of the civilized world, and, in order to demonstrate co-operation between the British and French peoples, you have simply to show yourselves to be good Canadians."

His Honor, in moving a vote of thanks, said that he wished to express the sincere gratitude of those present to M. Knight for entertaining them with his splendid address.

"This is, indeed, a red letter day in the history of your club," he continued, "and marks a milestone in the history of Canada. The speaker's first name is French. His second name is British. And what better combination for a minister to Canada could you have than that?

"May he long be spared to adorn the great and exalted position which France has called him to fill."

THE CHAIRMAN

Mons. Knight was welcomed by Mr. W. H. M. Haldane, vice-president of the Canadian Club, who acted as chairman. "It is our pleasure and privilege," said Mr. Haldane, "to welcome to our board today the accredited Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the Republic of France to His Majesty's Government in Canada.

"Our guest has the distinction, and I am sure he will consider it as such, of being the first minister of any European country to Canada. In his person he personifies the recognition by France of the status of our country as a nation, as one of the equal units of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

"In this country there are many thousands of our citizens, particularly in the Province of Quebec who, while they are loyal subjects of the British Crown, look back through the years to France as their motherland. Partly for this reason, partly by reason of sentiments also friendships made during the Great War and largely by reason of admiration for the courage and spirit of France, we, in Canada, have a very warm feeling in our hearts for the great country, sir, whose minister you are, and we feel that it is very fitting that the choice be the first European country to send her minister to us.

"Ladies and gentlemen, our guest has had a long and distinguished career in the diplomatic service of France, having entered it in the year 1901, and for his services has been awarded Knighthood of the Legion of Honor. During the last twenty years his posts have been in the Far East, notably in China. While this is his first visit to British Columbia, we may perhaps flatter ourselves that during his service in China and prior to his appointment to Ottawa, this, the Western seaboard of our country, may have attracted his favorable interest."

DRIVERS OF RENT CARS RESPONSIBLE

City By-Law regarding Return of Lost Property Found in Vehicles Will Be Enforced

A city by-law which has been on the books of the corporation many years has been revived in a recent by-law consolidation and will now be enforced. This by-law provides that lost property found in vehicles plying for hire must be returned by the drivers to the city police station within four hours of discovery, and, further, that the drivers must make an effective search of their vehicles at the end of each ride.

The first action under the by-law for many years was brought in the city police court yesterday when Harry Cook, driver for the Road Taxi Stand, was fined $5 for failure to comply with the by-law. Defendant said he had found a handbag in his car and had given it to his boss at the taxi stand. The bag, belonging to Mrs. A. Walker, of Eleventh Avenue West, Vancouver, was advertised for by its owner, and was later recovered by the police at a candy store next to the taxi stand.

In imposing a light fine for a first offence Magistrate Jay stated that all rent car drivers were personally responsible to see that lost property was placed in the hands of the city police within four hours. The onus, he said, was on the driver to show that he had made effective search for lost property, and that he had disposed of the property as the by-law directed.

INVESTIGATION INTO POULTRY DISEASES SET

Arrangements Are Made With National Research Council for Probe Into Cause

MR. MIDDLETON TO BE LOANED

As a result of conferences between the Minister of Agriculture, Hon. W. Atkinson, and Dr. H. M. Tory, chairman of the National Research Council of the Dominion of Canada, there is the prospect that something may be done by the latter body to carry on investigations into the causes and the elimination of diseases which affect poultry. There are prevalent in this province, especially in connection with the large producers of eggs.

The fact that the poultry of British Columbia are bred for their high producing qualities makes the diseases more prevalent here than in some other parts of the Dominion. It is therefore of especial importance to the province that the investigations should be carried out here. The matter is under consideration, and a conclusion will be reached shortly.

On the other hand the Department of Agriculture in British Columbia, through the minister, Hon. W. Atkinson, has agreed to lend to the National Research Council the services of Mr. Morris S. Middleton, district horticulturist at Vernon, from now until the end of September. The arrangements are almost completed for this, and Mr. Middleton, upon joining up with the council, will devote the time at his disposal for that work to the investigation of the effects of the fumes from the smelter at Trail upon the crops of the farmers.

Mr. Tory and Mr. Middleton will meet on Saturday and arrange the necessary arrangements connected with the project.

Mr. Middleton is specially well fitted for the work. He has made a study of the subject to a considerable extent during the time that he was stationed at Nelson. This will stand him in good stead in the work he will have to hand at the Trail investigation.

FAMOUS COURT HOUSE

Cariboo Building at Richfield Is to Be Preserved for Museum

At the unveiling of the monument at Barkerville to mark the site of the original Cariboo Road, Mr. John Hosie, provincial librarian and archivist, made an announcement before the gathering that he was instructed by his minister, the Provincial Secretary, Hon. S. L. Howe, to inform them that it was the intention of the Government to have the old courthouse at Richfield thoroughly repaired, and used as a museum for Cariboo relics.

This announcement was greeted with prolonged applause. In this, one of the most vociferous was Mr. R. L. Reid, K.C., who has long advocated such a course.

The monument, which takes the form of a cairn, is erected under the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada. The ceremony was under the local Masonic Lodge. The actual unveiling was in the hands of Mr. Harry Jones, the oldest of the pioneers left in the country.

The chairman was Mr. E. J. Avison, and addresses were given by Mr. R. L. Reid, K.C., Mr. J. F. Hampton Bole, grand factor of the Native Sons of British Columbia; Mr. John Hosie, Mr. Roderick Mackenzie, M.P.P., Mr. John A. Fraser, M.P., Mr. Russell MacDougall, Mr. R. N. Campbell and Mr. William Adams, a former M.P.

Dr. M. H. COUPE, Marinello Hairdressing

Recommends this 2-minute olive-and-palm-oil complexion care

"I recommend the daily use of Palmolive Soap as the most successful home method of retaining beauty."

DR. M. H. COUPE
MARINELLO HAIRDRESSING

DR. M. H. COUPE
whose expert advice could be regularly regarding complexion care

IT is strikingly significant that the leading beauty authorities of Europe and Canada agree on one basic beauty rule, a rule for keeping complexions radiantly lovely. They call it "foundation cleansing."

Not only in this city but in every important beauty centre of Canada and every capital of Europe, today, the leading authorities advise a simple home treatment to keep skin fresh and clear, a treatment involving the twice-a-day use of Palmolive Soap and water.

"Foundation cleansing"

"Foundation cleansing," as advised by the great authorities is simply the daily elimination of pore-clogging dirt and dust, of rouge and make-up. And this is done most effectively, by lather, by the bland, cream lather of Palmolive Soap.

This internationally-used complexion soap, blended of oils of olive and palm, rids the skin of secretions—provides a basis upon which individual beauty treatments are found to be most successful.

In Paris, Mme. Cavalieri, after much study, adopted Palmolive for her clients' use as a home treatment. So, too, did Le Blanc and Massé—other long established leaders. In Vienna, Pessl decided upon Palmolive. In Brussels, Fontaine—in London, Bertha Jacobson.

Independently, the great experts of Europe have discovered for themselves the amazing effectiveness of olive and palm oil complexion soap.

Lina Cavalieri, beautiful opera star, who now conducts a smart beauty shop in Paris. Mme. Cavalieri's own loveliness is proof of the wisdom of her beauty advice.

The Palmolive daily massage

Here is the treatment recommended by beauty authorities: massage a smooth lather of Palmolive Soap and warm water into the skin with both hands. Rinse first with warm water, then with cold, until all impurities are washed away. That's all! Yet this simple treatment is an important reason for the increasing number of lovely complexions all over the world.

Consult your own beauty expert. Follow her advice and this very inexpensive Palmolive Soap. A clear, radiant complexion will be your reward.

Beauty culture has become an exacting profession today. The Canadian woman relies on her beauty specialists for only the treatment but also for advice. And the average beauty specialist today has studied skin texture and the connection between health and beauty, between cleanliness and beauty.

The endorsement above, of one of the city's leading experts, is in unison agreement with the advice on care of the complexion offered by Madame Jacobson of London, Institute de Beauté of Paris, and leading beauty experts of Madrid, Vienna, Geneva—twice-a-day cleansing with Palmolive Soap.

CATTLE SHOWN EXCITE PRAISE FROM EXPERTS

Average Quality of Whole Exhibit Exceeds That of Anything in History of Annual Victoria Fair

FAMOUS ANIMALS ARE ON DISPLAY

Victoria has had many a splendid cattle show in the past at its annual Fall Fair. But never in the entire history of the Fair has the British Columbia Agricultural Association been able to offer a finer representation of British Columbia and other Western herds than at the present time. In respect both of quantity and quality the improvement is remarked by all visiting breeders, among whom are many of the most expert on the continent. There is, they say, more quality than in any other year since exhibitions have been held here, and a member of the selection committee told The Colonist yesterday that they could have filled the barn twice over. In addition to the splendid entries from Vancouver Island and the Lower Mainland herds there are fine exhibits of beef cattle from some of the Upper Country, the Prairie and California herds.

The greatest improvement is seen in the Jersey, Holstein and Ayrshire classes. Guernseys are quite represented; and for the first time at any of these fairs there is this year an exhibit of Red Poll cattle.

Beneath the ribbons which flutter here and there over the stalls are discovered some of the most distinguished prize-winning cattle of the West. Pursuing among these is La France's Princess, from Dr. Olson's Jersey herd at Duncan, which is represented for the first time at one of the British Columbia Agricultural Association's fairs. Princess, the record cow her stall shows, holds the world's record for two-year-olds of the 305-day class, yielding 14,481 pounds of milk and 739 pounds of butter-fat during the period.

Other leading Jersey breeders who are showing this year are E. Dunsmuir, Chilliwack, who has an entry of twenty head; J. M. Landry, of Sumerland, sixteen head, the Dominion Experimental Farm, Summerland, six; Messrs David Spencer, Limited, twenty; G. Gibling, Victoria, twelve; Dr. Olson, Duncan, four.

The Holstein exhibitors are the Colony Farm, twenty; O. A. Paull, Chilliwack, about fifteen; the C.P.R. Strathmore, about twenty; Dr. Hays, Cawstons, Alta., six; E. R. Bagg, Victoria, twenty-one, and R. Randall, Victoria, five or six. The majority of this Holstein display is far superior to any previous year.

AYRSHIRES

A great impetus of interest in the Ayrshire breed has been experienced recently owing to the recent importation of Crest, Dun Waters of Pentyre, B.C., owner of the famous Pinley herd, of thirty-four specimens selected animals. Chosen in Scotland by Professor King, of the agricultural branch of the University of British Columbia, the major part of the shipment is destined for the University Farm, a gift from Capt. Dun Waters. Their arrival in Vancouver two or three weeks ago created big excitement among stock men all over the province, being the first shipment of Ayrshires direct from Scotland to British Columbia. With this fine addition to the British Columbia herds it is anticipated there will be a magnificent showing of Ayrshires at next year's exhibitions.

Among other Ayrshire herds represented is that of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company, which already has a herd numbering a hundred or more, which is being supplemented in the near future with fresh stock direct from the Old Land. The company has shown a very keen business instinct in undertaking to supply the employees of the smelter with milk from the company cows. A. C. Anderson, of Langley, has a string of fifteen head of Ayrshires, this being the only Ayrshire entry from outside the province.

GUERNSEYS

Among the Guernsey exhibitors are Alister-Porteus, Cobble Hill, showing fifteen head; Charles Hawthorne, of Chilliwack, fifteen; William Hornby, Armstrong, the same number; Mr. Marr, New Westminster, and the George Rogers Dairy, Victoria. Mr. Rogers is exhibiting for the first time from his splendid herd at Christmas Hill.

Holstein enthusiasts were found a-plenty, optimistic for the future of this breed. Much improvement has certainly been effected in the butterfat grading of milk, which has been pushed up from a maximum of three per cent to something in the neighborhood of four or over. The Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company's herd, for instance, yields milk averaging 3.6 in butterfat. This brings the Holstein into competition with the other heavy butter-fat yielders.

SPENCER HERD

Following is a list of some of the best animals shown in the David Spencer, Limited, Jersey herd: Bowlina's Noble Sultan, born August, 1926, winner of the first prize for three-year-olds, and this year's reserve grand champion of all the Victoria show, after taking the grand championship at the Vancouver fair. This animal heads the Spencer show herd. In the same herd is Cursola's Rosie, imported from abroad, the highest placed winner in the Spencer string. She gives five gallons of milk a day at the present time. She won the first prize in the class for Jersey cow with a record at this show, taking the same prize at the Vancouver fair. Volunteers Royal Queen took the first prize, junior yearling class; also the junior championship, and the reserve grand champion prize. This cow was junior champion of the Victoria fair department section in her class, grand champion at Saskatoon this year, and junior champion at Edmonton. Sultan's Oxford has won the second prize in the junior yearling class here, also the reserve junior championship, following his recent success in Vancouver, where he won the junior championship. In the same herd is La Santea Oxford Coronation, winner of first prize in senior heifer calf, and reserve grand champion; Oxford Sultan's Flo-Flo, first prize junior heifer calf, Oxford Sultan's Beauty, first prize junior bull calf.

The first prize junior bull calf and first prize junior heifer calf are both the new herd sire, Oxford Sultan, of Oxford, imported from the Jersey Islands last year. This bull cost $2,000.

Spencer's Jersey herd at Fort Haney numbers 138 head, and in addition to supplying all the milk and cream required by their Vancouver store, they have built up three or four milk routes in the city of Vancouver.

Exhibits of Local Makers Are Both Bigger and Better

Methods of Showing Attractions on Stalls of Manufacturers and Distributors at Exhibition Render Them In Every Way Unique

Exhibits both larger in number and better than ever before are being shown this year by local manufacturers and distributors at the Provincial Exhibition. Stalls are arranged with a maximum display of advertisement and artistic beauty. Floral decorations softly shaded lights, combined with mechanical novelty make these exhibits unique in every way.

DAVID SPENCER LIMITED

A booth that attracts special attention is that of David Spencer, Ltd. Here are samples given out of Spencer's specially blended teas and coffee, as well as Jacob & Company's biscuits, of which there are more than one hundred assortments. Tier upon tier are the artistically arranged containers of Spencer's own products, put up by the Spencer plant in Vancouver. Canned goods, fruits and vegetables, soap flakes, jam, vinegar, jellies, olive oils, malt extracts, spices and many another product of the same class, all are set out for inspection, backed by a beautiful color scheme.

Occupying a central position, Davis & King, Limited have a splendid exhibit of the new Sparton Equasone radio and the Gourlay piano. This last is in two models, the grand and the baby Gourlay. Here also the Columbia Kolster is shown, this latter well-known instrument being played at intervals. Another feature is the all-Canadian product, the Super-Automatic Marconi electric reproducing machine.

NEON SIGNS

With a glittering show of changing color, the Neon signs are displayed. A revolving disk of glass gives off different shades, ever changing from design to design. An artistic glasswork rose is shown, and a spectacular and novel illuminated water jug. This oil-Canadian firm has hopes of establishing a factory here in the near future.

The Kingham-Gillespie Coal Co. has an attractive booth, heaps of fuel arranged in different ways. An overhead spotlight lends much to the effect.

BEATTY WASHER

The well-known Beatty Washer displayed by the Beatty Washer Store, offers a free standard lamp with every machine bought at the fair. A splendid exhibit is shown, with every type of machine demonstrated.

Frigidaire electrical refrigerators are shown and demonstrated by the Bruce Robinson electric store. Several of these machines are shown in different models. The famous cold control is featured with this refrigerator, enabling the operator to regulate the temperature with a simple adjustment.

The Hoover Vacuum Cleaner, the latest and lightest model, occupies an attractive stall. This machine for which the Hudson's Bay Company is agent, is receiving much attention.

HUDSON'S BAY COMPANY

The Hudson's Bay Company has an exceptionally fine display of furs. The entire exterior is finished with traverting, topped with Tiffany finishing, giving a fine lighting effect. Two polar bear rugs are featured, secured by the Hudson's Bay Company and manufactured by its branch in London, and three mannequins are shown, wearing fine furs. Many skins and finished furs are displayed, spotlights give a splendid effect to the whole.

The B.C. Paint and Hardware booth shows the Pawcett furnace and stoves, ranges and circulators.

The stall held by the Blue Ribbon Company holds distinct charm. Here waitresses in old-fashioned costumes dispense samples of tea and coffee. This is the fourth year this concern has exhibited, and this year it gives handsome prizes to the holders of winning tickets, received with every purchase of the product.

HATT'S HARDWARE

Hatt's Hardware show the De Luxe Burbank range, the Dominion and the Chesterton circulators. These last are in attractive colors of black and gold.

The Old English Beverage dispense soft drinks to all comers from an attractive stall. The colored decorations here are very striking.

Palm Dairy products are also served, and ice cream and milk shakes may be purchased.

At the Jameson coffee stall samples of this famous coffee are served to the visitors. Attractive display is made of the many products, coffees, teas, assorted spices, extracts, cherbet, baking powder, all being shown.

The British-America Paint Co. attracts many sightseers by clever use of a most striking mannequin. This electric "niagara" moves and hands operated complete, on the many virtues of the Satin-Glo and new quick-drying floor enamel featured here.

B.C. ELECTRIC

A story has been going the rounds about a pretty little bride who was fortunate enough to start her housekeeping duties in a home equipped with every possible modern convenience. Everything ran beautifully until one dark day she put the radio and the refrigerator plugs mixed in some way, with the result that the radio began to produce ice cubes and the refrigerator to broadcast a programme of popular music.

A visit to the B.C. Electric exhibit at the Provincial Exhibition might lead one to suppose there is some truth to this story, for one of the features of this exhibit is an electric refrigerator that actually speaks. It is just an ordinary General Electric refrigerator that also does everything a well-behaved refrigerator naturally is expected to do at all times.

PERSONAL VISIT SUGGESTED

How it comes to have the gift of speech, in addition to its usual duties, has not been explained, and company officials can only suggest that anyone interested cannot do better than to come and hear this refrigerator speak for itself.

Other items in the B.C. Electric exhibit include an exceedingly compact and efficient little ironing machine. It is an all-electric model and is shown in action in a laundry.

A selection of modern electric ranges, cleaners and washers is also being displayed, while the gas section has some interesting items in water heaters, ranges and heating appliances.

CENTRAL CREAMERIES

Among the many exhibits of interest and novel construction shown this year at the Provincial Exhibition, that of the Central Creameries (B.C.), featuring Our Own Brand butter, is of exceptional attraction. Beautiful designs have been wrought upon pure butter carved by Mr. Chris Bakken, their own artist. Six panels are shown, with a different design on each. Since these have to be kept under perfect refrigeration during their travels to each important exhibition in the Canadian West, some estimate may be gained as to the tremendous trouble and expense entailed.

The first panel depicts a familiar scene in European countries quaintly appealing with old-fashioned charm. The caption reads "Our Own Brand butter is familiar in Canadian homes, where it is found at all seasons." Panel number two is a model of one of their own delivery cars in the act of rendering prompt and efficient service. Other scenes are taken from humorous episodes of everyday life. Another panel is a famous picture reproduced.

By a clever mixture of art and argument the spectator is attracted by the novel beauty at the 2 same time receives the message, telling him of the worth to be found in this well-known Canadian product.

COMPENSATION

"Well," began the multi-millionaire, "there you have the facts of the case and I'll leave you to it."

The lawyer nodded and arranged the papers before him. The wealthy man had thrown down on his desk in a disorderly array. He knew that it was not going to be an easy task to straighten out the affairs of the rich man's son, but still, money was money.

"Now, you'll look after my boy, won't you?" went on the great man. "He has had a rotten time all told. He's lost a great deal of money and his wife, too!"

"Lost his wife, has he?" echoed the lawyer, who knew the lady in question. "Well, I reckon he's about even, then."

Mr. George Jeffrey, Who Attended Educational Conference Here, Will Return Home in Aorangi

Mr. George Jeffrey, who came to this country last April to represent Premier Stanley Bruce, of Australia, at the Conference on Education and Leisure, returned to Victoria on Monday night, after having spent some time in England and Scotland. Great Britain, in Mr. Jeffrey's opinion, is coming slowly back to her normal standard of prosperity, although this is a necessarity slow process in view of the enormous burden which she undertook. Mr. Jeffrey first came to Canada in the year 1910, and, upon returning nineteen years later, is still convinced that this country has a great future. The things which impress him most in the Canadian people is their unswerving loyalty to the Throne and their belief in the future of their country.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey sail for Australia tonight by the motor liner Aorangi.

Never an Iron on My Hair
By Edna Wallace Hopper

Wherever my theatrical engagements take me I could have a manicut, but I never do. I prefer my own method—washing my hair with my Wave and Sheen.

I always keep my hair clean by shampooing once a week. I apply Wave and Sheen with a comb. You can use a brush, of just your hands.

I dampen the hair with it—insert comb in the direction I want the waves, tie a veil over my hair and keep it on for about an hour. Some types of hair require more time, some less.

The result is a soft, lovely, undulating wave. Most people in my audiences think I have it marcelled. Many ask whether it is a natural wave. It is not.

You can have this same sheen no matter what method you use to wave your hair. Get a bottle at any toilet counter. One trial will convince you as it has thousands of others.

GENERAL ELECTRIC Refrigerator

When you buy an electric refrigerator the first essential, of course, is to get a refrigerator that will automatically keep your food constantly at a temperature below 50 degrees. Food is safe to eat only when so kept—and General Electric Refrigerators are guaranteed to provide this perfect safeguard against bacteria.

But cleanliness, too, is vitally important. And here again the General Electric Refrigerator is "years ahead" in design. Its mechanism never even needs oiling. It is all sealed, air-tight, in a steel casing and placed up on top, forever out of the way of dirt and difficulties. Radiation from the coils creates a constant upward current of air that prevents dust from settling. Its all-steel cabinet is warp proof.

In operation it is extremely quiet, highly economical. Not one of the 250,000 owners of General Electric Refrigerators has ever had to spend a dollar for service or repairs.

Come in and let us tell you how the easily accessible temperature control governs the speed of freezing ice cubes or frozen desserts.

Choose the model you prefer—you may buy on deferred payments if you wish.

Bride and Groom Will Live At Colquitz

The Metropolitan United Church was the scene of a pretty wedding last evening when at 8 o'clock Rev W. J. Sipprell, D.D., united in marriage Gertrude, eldest daughter of Mr and Mrs. W. H. Lloyd, Gordon Head, and Mr. Herman Franklin Williams, only son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Williams, Colquitz.

Given in marriage by her eldest brother, Mr. K. Lloyd, the bride made a lovely picture in an imported gown of white georgette with a straight tunic hand-embroidered in silver, and the skirt, fashioned in pointed style, falling long at the back and edged with velvet flowers and diamonds. A large satin bow on the side, with streamers falling to her ankles, completed her bridal costume. Her embroidered veil arranged cap style was held at the back with a circlet of orange blossoms, while a cluster of blossoms with silver ribbon and pearls dropped at the side. She carried a shower bouquet of Cophalia roses, lily-of-the-valley and fern.

BRIDAL ATTENDANTS

Mrs. R Norman, only sister of the bride, was maid of honor and wore a pale blue georgette gown with plain bodice and skirt pointed at the hemline, her only ornament being a shoulder bouquet of pale pink flowers. Blue ribbon bands with streamers and bunches of flowers were worn on her hair. The bridesmaid was Miss Marion Nancarrow, wearing canary shaded georgette similar to that of the maid of honor while yellow ribbon and flowers were also worn in her hair. They carried bouquets of pink carnations, sweet peas and fern.

Captain Ivan Clarke supported the groom. While Mr. W. Lloyd and Mr. Harry Nancarrow acted as ushers. Charming decorations had been arranged in the church by Mrs. Norman and the Misses Florie Smithson, Marrion Nancarrow and Bertha Nancarrow, where ferns, palms, gladioli and dahlias were used in profusion.

Mr. Edward Parsons presided at the organ and as the bride entered the church played the wedding march. The choir, of which the groom is a member, was in attendance and before the ceremony sang "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden." During the signing of the register they also sang "O Perfect Love."

RECEPTION HELD

Following the service a largely attended reception was held in the new home of the bride and groom, where the young couple were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Lloyd mother of the bride, wearing a pleasant dove georgette gown with beige hat, and Mrs. Williams, mother of the groom, wearing a becoming Alice blue canton crepe gown and beige hat.

The rooms were beautifully decorated for the occasion with Shasta flowers. The bride's table, centred by a three-tier wedding cake, was tastefully decorated in gold.

The bride and groom left on the midnight boat for Vancouver and Bound cities. For traveling the bride wore a pale green crepe de Chene gown with a blue coat trimmed with grey fur and a chic grey hat to match.

The groom's gift to the bride was a purse; to the maid of honor and bridesmaids, compacts; to the best man an indelible Prestwhat pencil; and to the ushers, cufflinks.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Williams will reside on Bay Street, Colquitz.

Fashion Fancies

By Marie Belmont

Black and lustrous, satin is already brilliantly lighting the path of the Fall mode. This fabric is confident of a first place in every smart woman's wardrobe this coming season. It will glean through the night hours as well as the day.

Just how Paris imports are favoring white for evening gowns. Worth at the same time is emphasizing the continued popularity of tobacco, chocolate coffee and the lighter tones of brown.

But as the years have proved, black knows no rival, and a daytime frock of satin is no exception. Such a black satin frock as the one shown above should be one of your first Fall selections. It is fashioned with the molded hipline, broader shoulders and occasional flares of pleating on cuffs, jabot and sash. A fetch satin collar and bow provide interesting contrast.

Your Problem And How to Solve It

Now I'm going to make what may sound like some surprising statements. I'm going to say that the answer, the solution, to your problem already exists and that I know it.

Yes, the chances are ninety-nine to one that I already know the solution to your problem before you've even told it to me. Over three thousand years ago King Solomon said: "There is nothing new under the sun." He was right. The urgent, pressing problem that is new to you is old to someone else. Many other people have already solved it to their heart's content. And their successful experience is at your disposal to learn and profit by.

It has been my pleasure and privilege to have been able to help many men and women the world around to solve their problems and to get started toward the health, happiness and prosperity they desired. I work on their problems. They tell me what they are up against—the health problem they want solve, advice. Ask for some a wealth of hard-to-secure, scientific material at my command, combined with my personal experiences throughout a busy professional life. I can help to give them the results they are seeking.

I take no personal credit for this. It's all done by knowing how to apply properly this remarkable new science which treats the Glandes of the human body and of the Eyes through the Great Sympathetic Nervous System.

No matter what you are or what your age or other conditions, if you are not satisfied with what life has brought you, I can help you. All I ask is the opportunity to prove it to you. It costs you nothing to take me up on this. Act right now.

CHAPTER III

In the revulsion that followed I felt sick physically sick, as thought unbearable spread to an apparent, yet monstrous, conclusion. The air of the room seemed foul and poisoned. My own dismay was reflected on the features of Balliol and of Eleanor, who now joined us. Only the face of Norse retained its usual calm, though I saw his lips tighten.

"Bio," he remarked, "and can anyone tell me if he has even seen a love like this in the possession of Mr. Balliol?"

Neither Carl nor Eleanor answered.

"You don't have to speak, continued the other, "though obviously our silence means yes. You will save to testify later, at all events."

It was Eleanor's voice that broke the pause. "Of course, there's no be putting off. He wears that kind. The glove is Francis Balliol's, I think. Then family. 'I'm going to my room. Would someone mind sliping me? I believe ."

Then I realized fully how great her strength had been.

One of the servants, whom I knew later as Anne Roderick, took charge of Eleanor at the door of her room. "She'll be right enough in a moment," whispered Anne. "She ever gives up."

There came a ringing of the telephone outside. Norse answered it, and I could hear him say, "He's here, eh? You've informed him? Very well."

The shadow deepened on Carl Balliol's face. Somewhere a clock struck five.

Francis Balliol, what kind of a man he was, where he had been during that night in October—this and become the supreme issue. I horse and myself, except for this certain downstairs, he was still merely a name. There was nothing.

I seemed to me, we could do but wait for his arrival.

On this score, however, Norse held different opinion.

"I don't know when he'll be here," he-rved the detective. "I hope later than sooner, because that will live in time."

"For what" I asked.

"For two things: first, to look at a collection; and secondly, to talk bout him with Carl, if he's willing. ad Miss Graham, if she's able, and ernor Hasta."

I felt cynical.

"It's an early hour to admire antiques."

"I'm sorry," returned Norse, "that can't advance the sun for you. ut am I wrong, Doctor, in assuming that you, for instance, when examining a patient, do not content ourself with thermometer and lethoscope, but are curious as to hat he thinks, what his habits are, and the like? The same applies to my own less eminent profession."

"Oh, I see," I answered, "you think, then ."

He cut me short. "I'm not thinkg. I'm absorbing. And I beg of ou and everybody else to do the ame. Thinking will come in time. ecently" He added instinctively Above all, feel! And now let's go own, get Hasta to bring us some offee, and we'll look at Mr. Balliol's museum."

We drank our coffee in the dining-oom, where only last evening Carla Ad welcomed me with her wistful, bf-fashioned courtesy. Now, inaded by the grey morning light, it seined, if possible, emptier and more forbidding. Her words whispered to Grantham returned echoes: "built in evil days, when there as no God." Unconscious prophecy, ern-eyed delusion! I felt once ore pass through me the whisper f her fear.

As it happened, Norse was elaborating a theory that harmonized with ty own reflections.

"What I mean," he was saying, "is he necessity of catching the undertones and overtones of a man's personality, in order to understand him, ialarily, on the bald surface of acts, your brother is implicated. A ary should be guided only by fact, " he went on, sipping reflectively, ion and should allow myself the luxury of impressions, so as to reach ew and more significant fact. resently I shall be meeting Balliol under abnormal circumstances. In simple justice I must now what he's like normally, and void snatching at conclusions. You understand,"

"I do," said Carl, "and I'm grateful. Francis is ten years older than and we've never been intimate—e had similarity interests, and I've been mixed up in practical affairs. I could vouch for his innocence."

"No doubt," interrupted Norse. "A man of flow taste," pursued Carl, "rude reading, and quick sentiment."

"Obviously," agreed the other, "this house furnished, and furnished served. Amen, that everything in it is, in some aspect or other, Balliol's. Before even examining Mr. Balliol's library, I'm certain I shall find a number of Italian books there. But not only this is true, the style reflects a rather short period—to hazard a guess, I should say from latter half of the fifteenth century. Mere decorators don't succeed like this; it takes a scholar."

"Doubtless," murmured Carl. "Well, gentlemen, shall we be looking at the collection?"

My earlier visits to the great room, more nearly associated than any other with the master of Greystone, had been in haste and for a definite purpose. I now had leisure to admire the size and the richness of its contents. Moreover, daylight gave an increased definiteness. I should say it was about fifty feet long and twenty wide. In height it was certainly not under thirty feet. Books lined its walls, and above these were hung silken pennons, gonfalons, with standards, shrouded and frayed by conflict or time. Along the centre of the room was arranged what even a layman could recognize as a priceless collection of armor, together with weapons of various sorts. These, coupled with the flags above, gave the impression of some old armory—an impression strengthened by the stone flooring of the room, although here and there rugs preserved it from uneasiness. There were other objects—a case of rich manuscripts, another of coins, of seals, of ivories, and curios of the sort. Rendered attentive by Norse's earlier remarks, I noticed that all of these belonged practically to a single epoch—presumably mid-Renaissance—and I guessed that most of them had been derived from Italy.

The end of the room was reserved for a separate collection, the nature of which appeared at first glance obscure. I supposed it to be a number of kitchen utensils, ruddy faded lined of wrought iron, and vaguely wondered that these should be brought into contrast with the exceedingly rare and beautiful objects nearby. There were several metal pitchers, a brazier with iron rods of various lengths, a chopping knife, a large wooden block with a handle, such as is used in pounding meat, three or four small hammers, a cart wheel, some contrivances of wood and leather, and the like. Nearby stood a strangely-shaped bench covered with a rug, and against it, as if mislaid from the centre of the room, leaned a two-handed sword. I could make nothing of all this, and would have passed on, had I not seen Norse's usually serene face harden to a look of intentness.

"Perhaps you," he said to Balliol, "can explain the use, if, several among these tools that I'm not familiar with—for example, the brass basin there?"

Carl smiled, and I was drawn to imitate him upon what seemed to me so idle a question. But the smile froze to my lips.

"Why," he answered, "after being heated to the proper shade, it was passed in front of the eyes of the victim—with the natural result."

His matter-of-fact words shook me like a blow. Also the truth he gan to dawn.

"And that square bar yonder?" asked Norse.

And again Balliol smiled "Was for breaking the limbs of anyone strapped to the wheel. Francis assures me that death, at times, did not come for several days."

These things were the equipment of a torture room!

Balliol continued his hideous catalogue: an iron flaying whip, exceedingly rare, a band for compressing the forehead, a beam for suspending a victim from spits of unmentionable purpose, the Spanish boot, known of a curious pattern ...

"My brother," said Carl, "has a special history of everything in his collection. It interests him to know where and how they have been used."

In Norse's phrase, it was "absorbing" more than it could stand. And imagination, pitiless enough, evoked a scene where, by the side of her husband, a shrinking woman listened as he "explained" these things—"the aids of eloquence"—his irony, I thought, was cruel at that moment. I had no further doubt as to the guilt of Francis Balliol. And I think that even Norse's equanimity was shaken.

"Of course," I heard him mutter, "it's possibly a clear case after all."

"Of Carl Balliol's innocence? In view of these other oddities, you can scarcely be that, dont at the corner of the room."

"The Door of the Dead Man or of Death," translated Norse. "But what does that mean?"

"You will have observed," returned Carl, how thoroughly an antiquary my brother is. There appears to have been a superstition in certain Italian families that by the same way Death came has death to be apt to re-enter, and hence they reserved a door for burial purposes, no wider than a coffin. It was always locked. When Death returned, he found the access narrow and barred. Perhaps it was thought that he would find it difficult house. Except on funeral occasions, it was fatal to open that door."

"Well," remarked Norse, "there is a reason for everything." I waited up and down in front of the shelves, examining titles and now and then plucking out a volume to look at it more closely.

"And now" he said, rejoining us, "I'd like some further information, but I'll be fair with you, Carl—you don't need to testify against your brother."

"And I should not," returned the other. "I'm willing, though, to tell anything you could find out elsewhere, because all I know is perfectly innocent."

"Now," Norse continued, "what I want to know, if possible, is the state of Mr. Balliol's fortune. I remember that his wife inherited a million, and that he has property of his own?"

"Certainly," replied Balliol. "About ten years ago, he made several millions in his hands."

When her father, Gordon Graham, died, I recall that he left his two to your sister-in-law's holdings?"

"Do you know anything in regard to children since five millions. Is that true?"

Carl shrugged.

"I know nothing definite about it."

"What I am getting at," said Norse, "is this: Could your brother have spent, in the past years Celia Balliol's death would have benefited him financially? I have to be in considerate, you see." He threw out his hand in a gesture of apology, and I noticed how deceptively delicate it looked, the nervous hand of a writer or musician. "My solicitude here," continued Norse, doubtless involved a great expenditure—enough to speak of the house. And there is also, otherwise, everyone has heard of, and of which I find no trace—namely, his collection of precious stones. Now it's conceivable that his resources have been drained."

"It's conceivable," admitted Carl. "Was Celia Balliol's property in her own name?"

"It was, but Francis managed it as her agent."

"At her death, I suppose, a part would revert to him and a part to Eleanor Graham?"

"I believe it would."

Norse leaned forward.

"In addition, do you know of anything further—personal property, jewels, life insurance—by which her husband would be the beneficiary at her death?"

Carl Balliol hesitated. "There was," he admitted slowly, "life insurance for a large amount taken out by Celia not long ago. It was in favor of Francis."

"And this amount?"

"Was for two hundred thousand, I believe."

Norse sighed again.

"That's all for the present, then—except this: You did not know where your brother was at 3 o'clock this morning; but had you seen him perhaps you would know?"

"I had not. I was at a club banquet, which was over very late. Then I came home."

A knock interrupted us, and one of Norse's subordinates entered.

"Mr. Balliol and I have just arrived, Captain Norse, and he insists on speaking with you at once."

"His insist, does he? Please ask him to be patient. And, Redsy, if he should make any noises to leave the house, detain him. Tell Hasta, the butler, that I want him here." And to Carl: "You'd better see Mr. Balliol; he perfectly frank with him, if you wish."

When the door opened, I heard a voice, angry and powerful.

HIS OBJECTIONS

An old Scots minister was tireless in visiting the members of his flock. He had accepted a presentation from church of one hitherto regular attendant.

"Weel," replied Donald. "I hae three decided objections. Firstly, I canna believe in sae mooie straight, secondly, I dinna believe in hell—whaur ye do all the talkin' an' thirdly, twas there I got ma wife."

SEEMED LIKE IT

A Londoner visiting St. Andrews for the first time determined to try a round of golf. Furnishing himself with the usual implements and a caddie, he went out before breakfast.

It seemed easy and his first drive was a terrific swipe. When the turf had ceased to descend, he turned a somewhat dazed, to the caddie, and asked, "What did I hit just now, my lad?"

"Scotland, sir."

"Dear me! I've been sitting on the piano stool all the evening," said the wife to her husband on an estate. "Miss Thumper might like to play the piano."

"Yes, that's why I'm sitting on the piano stool."

SONS OF CANADA AND JOKERS TO FIGHT FOR LEAD

Ball Teams Will Clash Tonight in Fourth Game of City Play-Offs—Expect to Break Impasse

SERIES DEADLOCKED WITH A WIN APIECE

WEST Stickney, president of the Jokers' ball club, will go to the mound tonight when his teammates oppose the Sons of Canada in the fourth game of the play-off series at the Royal Athletic Park at 6 o'clock. Dan Parfitt is expected to do the heavy work for the Canadians. With the series deadlocked with one win apiece and the third game a tie, tonight's battle will see the clubs striving for a lead in the play-offs for the city championship.

The Sons of Canada won the first game, 13-8, only to have the Jokers raise Mark and win the second, 5-2. Monday's game, one of the best seen on the local ball lot for many a day, resulted in a two-all score. The winner in tonight's game will gain a lead that might possibly mean the championship of the Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League.

KNIGHTS TO MEET Y.M.I. TONIGHT

Owing to Darkness Creeping in Teams Will Play Again This Evening—Other Results

Owing to darkness creeping in during the sixth inning, the Y.M.I.-K. of C. softball game to the Poodle Dog knockout series last night, was called off and will have to be replayed this evening at the Victoria West Park at 6:30 o'clock. When the game was called this evening in the sixth by Umpire Ernie Black the Knights of Columbus were leading by 10-8.

Both teams are expected to be on the diamond this evening sharp on time, as the winners will play the Sons of Canada tomorrow evening at Central Park.

Hawaiian last night City title holders, defeated Parfitt Brothers in a somewhat ragged fashion at Central Park by a 14-2 score, while Pimlay & Ritchie, runners-up to the City League honors this season, whitewashed Johnson Brothers "Nitties" in the third game of the Poodle Dog series, 4-0.

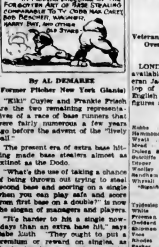
Base Stealing Is as Extinct as Dodo



By AL DEMAREE
(Former Pitcher New York Giants)

"Kiki" Cuyler and Frankie Frisch are the two remaining representatives of a race of base runners that were fairly numerous a few years ago before the advent of the "lively ball."

The present era of extra base hitting made base stealers almost as extinct as the Dodo.

"What's the use of taking a chance of being thrown out trying to steal second base and scoring on a single when you can play safe and score from first base on a double?" is now the slogan of managers and players.

"It's harder to hit a single nowadays than an extra base hit," says Babe Ruth. "They ought to put a premium or reward on singles, as they're tougher to get than doubles and triples."

LEFTY O'DOUL: A Trick That Gave Dutch Reuther a Victory.

CLYDE MILAN: Using a Rabbit for a Force-Out.

By J. P. OLSEN

DUTCH Reuther, old Chicago, Cincinnati and Brooklyn pitcher in the National League, and also a Washington star in the American, has been pitching so well in the Pacific Coast League that he is a kingpin out there Meantime, a former Coast ace, Lefty O'Doul, is a big smack among the scenes formerly frequented by Reuther.

Lefty, at the time, though, O'Doul and Reuther were both performing in Brooklyn. It was in the Winter League. O'Doul, like Reuther, was a pitcher then. They were opponents in the most important game on the schedule.

Let O'Doul tell about it:

"I'll never forget that game. I tried a trick to win it that I thought might clear. But it failed.

"The teams that were playing? Oh, that doesn't matter. This was just a little matter between 'Dutch' and me. You see the championship was at stake.

"The game went into extra innings. Finally the opposition got a man to second. It was now almost dark. In fact it was so gloomy you could scarcely see. That's how I got my idea.

"I sneaked up a foot and a half in front of the rubber in pitching the next batter. Nobody noticed me, either. Then I put on all the cream I had. But darned if he didn't get a clean hit that won the game."

THINGS GO CONTRARY

Joe Judge, the Washington veteran, says that things in baseball are apt to go by contraries.

"For instance," explains Joe, "one of the closest and longest drawn-out games in which I ever played was also the dullest.

"It was ten or eleven years ago. Washington was playing Chicago for Washington, with Walter Johnson pitching for us and 'Lefty' Williams working for the White Sox.

"Only one run was scored and that came in the eighteenth inning. We made it and won the game.

"You'd expect a game like that to be nerve-racking, wouldn't you? Well, in a way, this one was. But from the playing viewpoint it wasn't. The reason was that Johnson and Williams were both so good they wasn't any hitting to speak of. There were almost no base hits, no chances, and what few there were did not come at a critical time.

"It was just a case of walking out, striking out, fielding out and walking in again. The eighteen men who started the game finished it.

"The ending was disappointing, too, except for us who won it. We got a man around to third. Then Williams made a wild pitch. Oh! he said it was mine, but he got his hand. He knew it was no good. He couldn't thrill over that. Could you? All you really did was to feel sorry for 'Lefty,' who had pitched such a grand game, though naturally we were tickled to have Walter Johnson win."

There are so many versions of baseball's famous rabbit story that Zeb Milan's should be printed, too. The old Washington star outfielder while filling in as manager during Walter Johnson's recent illness told it to me.

"Down in Texas an added attraction was put on before a ball game," says Clyde. "A jack rabbit race was staged, the rabbits being chased by greyhounds.

"Before the game started, the rabbits were galloped up again, but one hid in the long grass back of second base and couldn't be found.

"During the game, with a man on first, the batter hit the ball past second. The second baseman ran over, grabbed for it, and instead pulled out of the grass a jack rabbit, which he tossed to the shortstop, who had covered second.

"This threw beat the base-runner. The umpire, running over, shouted, 'You're out—by a hare.'"

We do not know how this story got started, but we surmise that one of baseball's fertile humorists attended a greyhound race in Florida and evolved the other details from it. Anyway it has a wide vogue among the players.

SETS FAST PACE ON MOTORCYCLE

OCULSLEY, Aug. 20.—Mr. J. R. Tindall, motorcyclist of Vancouver, while testing the speed of his machine on the sand of Long Beach on Saturday, exceeded the limit of 100 miles an hour and damaged his meter.

Two weeks ago, Tindall made ninety miles, but reported that he had made 110 on Saturday.

High Mashie Pitch Will Fall Dead

By SOL METZGER

While most of the best golfers among them Bobby Jones, Francis Ouimet and Harvey Ellinger Johnston play a moderately low mashie shot, not one golfer in ten will get more atop to his ball if he imparts left to it.

The greater the loft the more vertical the fall of the ball to the green. When that end is obtained, backspin or bite need not give the ball a pitch or not a true one, as the ball does not descend as it rises from the turf. The force of the initial impact that sends it on its way is spent by the resistance of the atmosphere and by gravity. Thus, when the ball begins falling its impelling force is almost gone and it yields more to the pull of gravity. That will cause it to fall almost vertically if the pitch is high. Remember this when you are pitching and you will find more balls holding the green.

Tomorrow—"Touch" on the greens.

ALEXANDER IS SUSPENDED BY CARD'S TEAM

Veteran Twirler, Who Recently Broke Mathewson's Record of Victories, Is Given Rest

BREAKING RULES IS CHIEF CAUSE

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 20.—Soon after setting a new National League record for games won at 373 victories, Grover Cleveland Alexander, hero of the 1926 world series, is in the doghouse with the Cardinal management facing at least suspension for breaking training rules.

The forty-year-old pitcher who broke the record of "Big Six" Christy Mathewson, was sent home from New York yesterday by Bill Killefer, the field manager. Late Alexander disregarded the manager's warning that his next escapade would be his last. President Breadon, of the club, has not decided upon the final disposition of Alexander's case but he points out that he has sold two weeks ago when he refused to obey the manager's order to another chance, and if he broke training rules again he would be out.

"I don't care to pass judgment on Alexander's case until I have talked with him," Breadon said. "I am very fond of Alex and do not wish to say at this time whether I will release him. Of course I am giving my full support to Manager McKechnie and if McKechnie says this is final, then it is."

It was Alexander's refusal to be disciplined that enabled the Cards to obtain the famous hurler during the 1926 season from the Cubs.

Trapshooters Are Coming From Nearly All Parts of Pacific Northwest—Colonist Cup Will Be Defended by Horth

The lawn bowlers, aquatic stars and golfers have had their fling and carrying out major tournaments and now that all these sporting organizations have had their meets recorded in the history books another line of sport will hold the spotlight, commencing on Saturday and terminating on Sunday. The branch of sport spoken of is the annual Victoria Island trapshooting tournament, under the auspices of the Victoria Gun Club, at the Colwood race track.

Sylvester, secretary of the Victoria Gun Club, announced yesterday morning that all arrangements were completed for what he expects to be one of the most successful meetings of hunters and expert trapshooters since the tournaments inception. Contestants will compete in the various events for coveted trophies and many cash prizes from Port Angeles, Camp Talbot, Tacoma, Seattle, Bremerton, Bellingham, Everett, Portland, Walla Walla, Camp Lewis, Vancouver and Victoria, besides several other amateur clubs throughout the Pacific Northwest.

The quality and quantity of the competitors from across the border is not definitely known, but it is expected that the crack local shots will be in fine form to hold their own against the invaders. From Port Angeles are coming expert shots in J. L. Coffey, Ray Long, O. Hixon, D. Jones, F. Cuppit and G. Merrill. These six invaders will be closely watched as they have captured prize money at meets in Washington State meets.

SARAH PALFREY HOLDS SPOTLIGHT

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Aug 20—Wrestling with the heat, Helen Wills, Brookline, Mass., stole the spotlight away from the other feminine tennis stars on the course at the Westside Stadium this afternoon when she outplayed the British veteran, Mrs. Dorothy Shepherd-Barron, 6-10, 6-2, 6-4, to reach the third round of the National Women's Championship.

On the basis of performances all court play, the Brookline, Mass star, who will not be seventeen year old until next month, is favored to defeat Miss Helen Jacobs, of Berkeley, Cal., tomorrow, and meet Helen Jacobs in the quarter-final round on Thursday.

Helen Jacobs eliminated Elsie Cross, New York, 6-0, 6-4, and Betty Nuthall, the principal English girl accounted for Gertrude Ryan, New York, 6-3, 6-1. Except for a victory of Mrs. Lillian Rosser Alexander, Bronx, N.Y., over Clara Zinke, Cincinnati, 1-6, 1-6, 6-3, 6-1, the first round match-es carried few surprises.

Reed of Vancouver Scores 136 Against University Incogs

Century Is Obtained by Pillar in Five C's Game Against Victoria—Cowichan Score Merrily at Home From Okanagan

Centuries in the Victoria-Five C's game, and in the match between Incogs and Vancouver, featured the second day's play of the Pacific Coast Cricket Tournament here yesterday.

Pillar made 108 not out for the Five C's, practically winning the match for his team with a five wicket margin (218 for five against 180). Reed's 136 for Vancouver formed the chief contribution of the visitors' total of 222 against Incogs, who only made 89.

Cowichan entertained Okanagan at Duncan, and won very easily, 307 for seven wickets, declared, against 90.

FIVE C'S WIN AGAIN

At Beacon Hill Park the Five C's defeated Victoria by five wickets and 78 runs in a game more interesting than indicated by the final scores. The Five C's skipper won the toss, and adopted the usual procedure of sending in his opponents to bat first. The trifle commenced with the initial ball of the match, when Pendray clean bowled Lewis. Slow scoring ruled for the first hour or play, Pendray keeping such a perfect length that in his first eight overs no less than six maidens had been recorded, and only two singles allowed. Victoria lost six wickets for 42 runs when Grant joined Nelson in a partnership that thoroughly retrieved the situation, and provided the spectators with a brilliant and forcing exhibition of batting. Grant and Nelson carried the score from 42 to 122, when Grant was bowled by Eric Qualmton for a valuable 40. Nelson continued to play the profitable forcing game, hitting three sixes in his masterly innings of 78.

A CENTURY

Opposed to a total of 180 the Five C's commenced confidently, and refused to be forced into defensive methods. Pillar played a brilliant game in his match winning contribution of 108 not out, the Five C's batsman displaying a variety of strokes that left the bowlers hopeless. Showing a way through his defense, Gallt and Eric Qualmton shared in the creditable victory by 31 each, the latter's partnership with Pillar realizing 104 runs.

Favorites Win Four Of Seven Events on Third Day of Meet

Form Players Have Fairly Good Day at the Willows—Heroakra Pays $23.20 for Best Price —Good Programme Today

Yesterday, the third day of the present semi-day race meet at the Willows half-mile track, saw the favorites come to the wire in four out of seven races. However, despite the fact that it was more or less a form players' day, Heroakra threw a monkey wrench into the proceedings when he came to the wire in the second and rewarded those faithful punters who saw fit to back him with $23.20 for a $2 ticket, on the nose. This was the best price of the day. Double figures appeared on the price board again in the fourth and fifth races, but not for the winners. In the fourth Moonchild, with La Rocque up, came in in the place position and returned $12.15, while Sylvanus, from Leo Bacorzi's stable, paid the punters $11.30 when he took the slot position in the next race.

There were a number of exciting finishes, the kind that made the punters hold their breath, and then again there were races when the winners won in a cake walk. Taking it all the way it was a good day's racing with greyer running for the better part as they were expected to by the boys who had looked up their previous performances.

After being outrun in the early stages, Maurice Molesky came fast in the drive home and was going away from the field at the finish. Little Phasta, with Pollard up, ran second throughout. Jack Junior entered the stretch a neck in front of the place horse, but was beaten out near the stand.

TWO FOR ANDERSON

Anderson brought in his second straight winner when, with a leg up on Heroakra, he led the procession to the judges' stand two lengths in front of Black Aster. The winner would wide at the last turn but stayed out in front of Black Aster who was not fast enough to take advantage of saving ground on the turn for home. Jack Beaman was third.

Close to the leaders all of the way, Little Smoke went out in front coming into the stretch and outlasted Jim Roosan to win the third. The latter was given a good ride by Owen Sharbino, third at the three-quarter, finished in the place from Moonchild. The winner came fast in the final quarter and won in the last few jumps. Moonchild, also rapidly and took the place money by a nose from Willamette. The latter, leading the parade on leaving the stretch, faded right at the finish.

Breaking fast and saving ground on all turns, Trade Wind, the favorite, romped home in the fifth a length and a half in front of Jack Knight. The latter came into the stretch in front by a head and just out when he ran wide. Sylvanus, third at the half, was never displaced. He paid $11.30 for a top-dollar show ticket, much to the amusement of the punters.

OJO WINS EASILY

There was nothing to it in the sixth race when Ojo, running neck and Lady Finnell, the pacemaker, picked up the leader going into the stretch and won handily. The latter was moving fast in the early running. Traylor Beth came rapidly going for home and finished third half a length in front of Cao Wahi. Frye, with a leg up on Wai Sakana, carried off the major honors in the last race when he beat out Coeur De Lion in the last few jumps by a neck. The latter, coming out in front shortly after the break, could not withstand the fast closing finish of the winner. Herakalna was third.

ENGLAND APPEARS IN SAFE POSITION IN TEST CRICKET

LONDON, Aug. 20.—Forced to follow-on, England made good use of a single innings defeat in the fifth cricket test match with South Africa today. England made a determined effort to end the test adjournment, looked to be in a safe position. South Africa put on the second score of 402 for eight wickets and declared late for innings closed.

England made 236 in their first trip to the wicket, so that they were faced with the task of marking up a lead, a deficit of 166 runs to be the highest upshot of the match. Hobbs and Sutcliffe made the first three innings, required 324 to win, then—even less than the innings defeat. At tea time they had made 142 for the loss of only one second innings wicket and a draw appeared the inevitable end to the match which had to be concluded today.

RAJAH INCREASES BATTING AVERAGE

Rogers Hornsby, ace of the right-hand sockers, shouted about all the glory gathered yesterday by the "Big Six" club. In eight times at bat in the Cubs' doubleheader with the Giants, the Rajah hit safely four times, including a grand triple, scored two runs, and drove one of the games by counting the only score of the contest. Hornsby lifted his average two points to .360. Freshie sticking caused all the rest except "Chuck" Klein to lose ground. Klein added one point. Simmons and Ruth went miless.

FILIPINO SIAMESE TWINS FEATURED

Only Made Joined-Together Freaks in World Billed at Colisseum

They swim and they dive they ride a motorcycle and they drive motor cars, they do an amazing series of gymnastic feats—all this in addition to their real work, which is that of superbly educated musicians leading their own famous orchestra. "They" are the Godino Filipino Siamese twins, the only male joined-together twins in the world—the only masculine Siamese twins born since P. T. Barnum brought Chang and Eng, joined together, from Siam some sixty years ago.

The Godino boys—Lucio and Simplicio—aged twenty-one, recently married, have been trained as gymnasts since their adoption by Theodore Vanon, a Manila millionaire philanthropist and a former Commissioner for the Philippines to the United States. Their remarkable union—they are joined at the base of their spines by a cartilaginous strip—has given them a co-ordination almost unbelievable. Hence, when they try a gymnastic stunt, neither signals the other. They leap into the feat, as would a single performer, just as they sit down and rise without a sign to each other.

The Godino boy Siamese twins have been brought to Canada, and they, their brides and their band will be seen and heard at the Coliseum Theatre, Victoria, with their brides in the act, in person, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

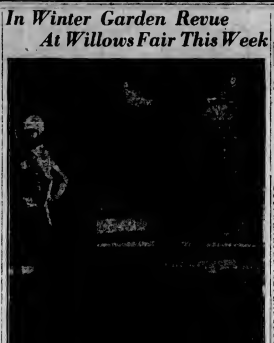
In Winter Garden Revue At Willows Fair This Week



LINCOLN and Peodora, dancers from the Winter Garden Revue, South Africa, yesterday proclaimed the coming of a new ballroom dance, more energetic and savage than its predecessors. Out of the wilds of the Congo, Lincoln and Peodora have brought the Congo Voodoo featured in his Winter Garden Revue. The Charleston and Blackbottom are tame compared with it.

"We got the idea from an old witch doctor," Lincoln and Peodora declared. "When we had it worked out, we brought it to Canada for the first time." "At one point, for instance," said Lincoln, "I seize Peodora by the wrist and leg and spin her into space and hurl her to the floor, then jump with both feet upon her abdomen in real barbaric fashion. It is true, according to Peodora, that this used to hurt but her muscles have become hardened and it doesn't bother her any more. Of course, we do not believe the general public will be quite so rough about it as we are. The girls will be thrown in more fashion, we believe, but not in an extreme manner."

"After all," declared Lincoln and Peodora, "one has to live in Africa to get the savage instinct into which this dance is based." Waxing descriptive, the British dancers told how it happened that the Congo witch doctor taught them the fundamentals of the Congo Voodoo.

"We were camping in the tall African grass in Sekania, near the Congo River, when he came hopping along," they said. "He was about fifty years old. His thin black body was uncovered except for a leopard skin which he wore around his loins. He started to prance and bound around, kicking his legs around in grotesque fashion in every direction, crossing his legs and rolling over. Suddenly he darted forward with a howl and fell exhausted to the ground."

NANCY CARROLL HERE YESTERDAY

Miss Nancy Carroll, the talkie screen star, who was seen here recently in the Film Mystestone Pictures production "Ladies Love Brutes," paid an unexpected call on Victoria yesterday. She arrived with a company in her brougham, drawn from Victoria during the morning and left for Vancouver by the 1:45 p.m. boat. Rumors of her presence caused a rush of girls to the Empress dock, most of whom were disappointed, since they were unable to recognize Miss Carroll.

"I think I hear an alarm of fire!" said a bored husband, watching a very dull play. "I must go and see where it is." His wife, whose hearing was less acute, made way for him in silence. "It wasn't fire after all," he said, on his return. "Nor water either!" said his wife caustically.

"THE ONLY WAY" IS COMING HERE

Sir John Martin-Harvey Will Open Fifth All-Canadian Tour at Montreal on September 23

WILL ALSO BRING TWO OTHER PLAYS

The sixth all-Canadian tour of Sir John Martin-Harvey, with his entire London company, which will open at Montreal on September 23, will be chiefly remarkable for the fact that he will give the farewell performances of "The Only Way." But he will also bring two romantic plays which will be entirely new to Canadian audiences. The first of these, "The Loveland Wolf," is written by the great Spanish author, Angel Guimera, and is regarded as a classic in Spain. Its theme has been used for the opera, "Tosca," while the play has been translated in nearly every European country. In it both Sir John and Lady Martin-Harvey have fine opportunities, and no doubt it will prove as popular in Canada as it has in the Old Country. Sir John will bring over with him most of the same company that has already made countless friends in the Dominion.

Sumas Land Sales Reported As Being Slow

Dr. W. H. Gadder, Colonization Commissioner, Canadian Pacific, and Mr. G. Bruce Dixon, of New Westminster, acting superior under the Government, were in the city yesterday. Dr. Gadder is in charge of colonization at the Sumas land reclamation area. Dr. Gadder said that there had been a large number of hop pickers sent out in Canada as a result of the work of gathering this year's crop. The outlook was very promising so far for the hop growers, he said. While there are a number of inquiries coming daily to the office of Mr. Dixon relative to the land within that area, the sales are not very numerous. This is accounted for from the fact that those coming into the province at present seeking land are desirous of obtaining it on pre-emption lines without the expenditure of capital.

Mr. Motherwell Highly Praises Berry Storage

VANCOUVER, Aug. 20.—Thoroughly satisfied with the work of the Dominion Government subsidized cold storage plant at New Westminster in storing British Columbia berries, Hon. W. R. Motherwell, M.P., Dominion Minister of Agriculture, pointed to the plant as an excellent example of teamwork between Dominion and provincial governments when he addressed the Rotary Club Tuesday on his way East.

Mr. Motherwell pointed out that the Dominion Government had supplied the cold storage plant, while the Provincial Government had provided for the processing of berries. "It is a splendid example of teamwork between the two Governments," he said.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY

In this strenuous period when complaints are coming out of the experimental stage into the field of practical use, it is interesting to study some of the hazards which confront the flying man. In spite of the fact that any serious disease prevents the granting of a pilot's license, the aviator must be constantly alert to protect himself against many minor illnesses and accidents which would not be serious to one not flying.

One exposed to the strain of flying too frequently, or too long at one time, may develop flying sickness and a temperamental nervous feeling, causing his sleep to be broken by terrible nightmares, as of crashing into a ship that is on fire from a tremendous height, or colliding in the air with another ship flying in formation. By the time he has dreamed such a dream every night for a week, his judgment and mental control may be affected. Sometimes in these dreams he recognizes the pilot knows to have crashed comes back to haunt him. In it any wonder that on the morning he fears to take his ship up, or that his self-confidence is shot?

The physical strain of excessive flying may also result in a muscular unbalance, a convergence insufficiency, or a divergence excess which will impair the pilot's judgment at the vital moment when he is landing will cause him to under or over estimate the proper distance so that he will not hit the field where he wishes to.

Dizziness the French see showed these symptoms of increasing nervousness and irritability for some time before his fatal flight, and his mates called in a specialist to examine him, who arrived just half an hour after the fatal crash he had in the flight from which he never returned.

In the beginning of the flying era men stayed up comparatively close to the ground, but now it is not uncommon to go up as high as 25,000 feet. Due to the increased oxygen tension there are two types of altitude sickness. The symptoms are headache, vomiting, nausea or ringing in the ears, nausea, and a dimness of vision. The first type of this sickness is acute and marked by vomiting attacks or inability, rapid heart beat, and marked weakness. The second type is due to the same characteristics, but the attack is delayed. The symptoms of nervousness and heart derangement may be accompanied by a heavy headache and the feeling of being unable to move—a sort of paralysis of the limbs and marked weakness. The pilot becomes dazed or unconscious in some cases the pilot does not realize that he has pain or dizziness, but feels very sick, almost too well, and this breeds confidence in himself and his condition that keeps him from realizing that his life is imperiled. He not only feels very well, but he is sure that he was never better. He considers himself in full control of his plane when he may really be almost helpless. He may lose control of his plane suddenly, acting like a sufferer from petit mal (epilepsy), or he may faint two or three miles away from earth and, alone in his ship, hurtle downward. If luck is with him, he will come to at a lower level of flying to find his plane out of control, or he may never recover from the fainting fit at all, in which instance he crashes.

Bears, Bees and Honey

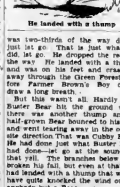
—By THORNTON W. BURGESS—

In justice tie no more than right,
To make the bully suffer fright.
—Farmer Brown's Boy.

Farmer Brown's Boy was watching a sight he had never expected to have a chance to watch—two Bears in a bee tree. It didn't take him long to understand just what had happened. He knew that the smaller of those two Bears had found the honey and had climbed up to get some. There he had been discovered by the other Bear, who had promptly gone up to get his share. The smaller Bear, afraid of the bigger Bear, had gone up the tree because he couldn't go down the tree. To go down the tree would have meant to meet the bigger Bear coming up. Farmer Brown's Boy knew that the smaller Bear was bawling because he was afraid. He knew that the whimpering and whining of the bigger Bear was because of the stings he had received from the angry bees. And that the growls and snarls of this Bear were intended to frighten the other Bear.

After a time Farmer Brown's Boy began to be sorry for the smaller Bear, which you know was Cubby Bear. "Buster Bear is just going to take all that honey," thought Farmer Brown's Boy. That little rascal up above won't get any of it. No, sir, he won't get a taste of it. I wish I could scare Buster Bear away and give that youngster a chance. I do believe it is Cubby Bear. If it is, Cubby ought to know me. I believe I'll see what a yell will do. I've known Buster Bear to run from a yell before now. I don't know of anyone more bashful than Buster Bear."

Farmer Brown's Boy waited a few minutes longer to enjoy the strange scene. Then he stood up and yelled. At the sound of his voice things happened at a fast and furious rate. They were surprising things. Buster Bear had just hooked out a big gawful of comb dripping with honey. It never reached Buster's mouth. Instead, it was flung so that it fell halfway to where Farmer Brown's Boy was standing. A lot of bees followed it there. At the same time big Buster Bear began to slide down that tree. And high up above him Cubby Bear also began to slide. Farmer Brown's Boy could simply stare open-mouthed with wonder. He hadn't supposed that anyone as big as Buster Bear could come down a tree so fast. Once more he yelled. If that yell had been a shot from a terrible gun, it could have been no more effective. Buster Bear, who was two-thirds of the way down, just let go. That is just what he did, let go. He dropped the rest of the way. He landed with a thump that was on his feet and crashing away through the Green Forest before Farmer Brown's Boy could draw a long breath.



He landed with a thump

But this wasn't all. Hardly had Buster Bear hit the ground when there was another thump and a half-grown Bear bounced to his feet and went tearing away in the opposite direction. That was Cubby Bear. He had done just what Buster Bear had done—let go at the sound of that yell. The branches below had broken his fall, but even at that, he had landed with a thump that would have quite knocked the wind out of anybody but a Bear.

Farmer Brown's Boy laughed aloud. Then he came forward and looked up in the tree. He could see where Buster Bear had ripped the tree open. There was a large and considerable comb and honey was left. He was very satisfied by how he could get some of that honey when he felt like it. Farmer Brown's Boy didn't stop to look any further. He started off at quite a good a pace as had either Buster or Cubby Bear. And as he ran he was slapping at his neck and face.

So at last Busy Bee and her friends were left in peace and promptly set about finding another storehouse and starting their work all left of their sweat.

SCHOOL EXHIBIT IS FINE ENTRY

School Children Show Some Excellent Pieces of Cabinet Work as Well as Art Work

Good competition is noted this year among school children entering for the prizes offered in the school exhibits section at the Fair. The sections for drawing and maps have been particularly well contested, and the influence of the various art schools is apparent in the improved design work, both in the nine to twelve-year section and the twelve to fifteen-year section. The most conspicuous piece in the schools exhibit is in the manual training collection, where some excellent examples of cabinet-making are found.

"AMIENS"

The Canadians Smashed through to win the Greatest Victory of the War!

Castrol ...WAS THERE TOO!

Today.... IN PEACE ... Castrol is still playing the game on the highways of the world . . . just as it did during those stirring August days of 11 years ago . . . when the Canadians made History.

Chosen by the Empire for the Air Force, Army and Navy during the War . . . Castrol is today the choice of most thinking motorists.

There is no other motor oil like Castrol. No other lubricant is produced in the same way. No motor oil carries you a similar distance. No other lubricant provides such Economy and complete motoring satisfaction.

Castrol gives you an assurance of 2000 Miles to the Filling . . . with Safety! What other lubricant could make such a definite promise? . . . and keep it!

Castrol is a compound of the finest mineral oils available PLUS the purest castor oil. Each oil supports the other. The result is that toughness of body which Castrol alone possesses. No matter how terrific the strain, the heat defying film remains.

You would naturally expect that a scientifically blended lubricant like Castrol would cost a few cents more a quart. It does!

But Castrol actually cuts your oil bills in two for it gives you three times or four times the mileage of ordinary oils.

The price difference is so small and the saving so great that it requires no mathematical mind to figure out that Castrol costs less per mile than the cheaper, per gallon oils . . . and it reduces friction to a fraction.

Proved in the War . . . Castrol stood up gallantly under the sternest of all realities. Proved in Peace . . . Castrol has more records to its credit than all other lubricants combined.

IMPORTANT: Castrol is available through garages and INDEPENDENT service stations only. Watch for the Castrol Sign . . . your guide to super-lubrication.

JUMP FORWARD MAKES MARKET LOSE BALANCE

Pace of Trade Was So Swift That Towards Close Price Trends Became Confusingly Irregular

NEW LEVELS ARE REACHED AT N.Y.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The stock market leaped forward with such violence today that it lost the balance and closed with price trends confusingly irregular. The pace of trading was sharply accelerated, more than 4,600,000 shares changing hands.

As indicative of the profit-taking which came into leading issues, General Electric rose about 5 points to a record high at 403, and fell back to 392 1-2 at the close; U.S. Steel rose to a new top at 281 1-2 but closed at 247 3-4, and Allied Chemical surged up nearly 18 points, then lost more than half its gain. Allis Chalmers was a high flier, shooting up 43 points to around a level of 330, closed at 325. International Telephone made a spurt of 13 points to a new record price above 135 and closed near the top. Continental Can similarly has been regarded as selling out on line with American Can, rose more than 5 points to a new top but under 88. Other stocks to sell at unprecedented levels included Commercial Investment Trust Common, Sovereign, Imperial, Hudson, New York Central, U.P., Pennsylvania, Norfolk & Western, Public Service of New Jersey, Simmons, and Westinghouse Electric. Warner Bros. A lost nearly 3 points after chalking up another peak. American Machine & Foundry, a recent bull favorite, tumbled nearly 17 points.

Rails issues as American & Foreign Power, Crucible, Gillette, Western Union, and Stone & Webster yielded 3 to 4 points.

Foreign exchanges were steady to firm with Sterling Cables a shade higher at $4.84 25-32.

Trading in the listed bond market today was highly irregular. The monetary situation was unchanged.

WHEAT SUFFERS EARLY SETBACK

LIVERPOOL'S EXTREME WEAKNESS STARTS WINNIPEG MARKET LOWER

General Selling by Way of Liquidation of Long Wheat—Speculators About Unchanged

(Branson, Brown & Co., Ltd.)

WINNIPEG, Aug. 20. — Wheat prices suffered a severe setback during the first part of today's session, and on the extreme break were from 3 cents to 3-8 cents under the close Monday. Extreme weakness in Liverpool started the market off sharply lower and there was general selling by way of liquidation of long wheat, which found a very poor demand, although there was some support from locals and commission houses.

Later in the day, the C.P.R. officials decided the report current that they had estimated the crop of west Canada at 330,000,000. This brought in some support with early sellers reinstating their long lines, while buying became very scarce, resulting in a sharp upturn from bottom levels, and the market closed around top level for the day. Late strength in Chicago was also a help to the local market. In the cash market, there was a fair demand, with offerings very light. Millers and shippers were taking all grades from No. 1 down to feed.

Spreads were about unchanged, except Nov. 6, which was 1 cent better, while feed was 1 cent lower. Export business was confirmed as having been worked overnight, although the deal did some business late. Weather mostly clear in Canada west, with a few light scattered showers, and temperatures mostly warmer.

Wheat cutting is proceeding with about 15 per cent of the crop done, but it is some acres will be much delayed. There is still ground tide, however, because of old crop in the country, with congestion reported at Montreal, and freight demand is very slow. Believe it will be very difficult to boost prices at the present time with the new crop just beginning to move.

Coarse grains—The market was all sharply lower, during the first of the day, but oats and barley made a good rally to close about unchanged. There was very little cash business, with no export sales and domestic demand light.

Flax—Dull and featureless. No pressure; poor demand, very little interest shown.

CHICAGO WHEAT PRICES BREAK

LIVERPOOL AND WINNIPEG WEAKNESS GIVES MARKETABLE INFLUENCE

Buying Against Bids Helps Check Decline—Cash Demand Is Reported Fair

(B.C. Bond Corporation, Ltd.)

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—Liquidation was on in wheat early, with stop-loss orders being hit at market, and prices here broke sharply. Weakness in Liverpool and Winnipeg had considerable influence, the alleged Canadian Pacific crop estimate of Canada yesterday being a big factor among theorists, officials of the Canadian Pacific having put out a report that they were covering and commission house buying. Private reports from the Canadian Northwest indicated that about 15 per cent of the wheat acreage had been cut and movement of new grain is increasing at Winnipeg. Export demand at the seaboard was slow, with no sales of consequence reported. Liverpool closed 3 3-4 to 4 cents lower. Foreign crop comments were pretty bearish. Buenos Aires was 2 3-4 cents lower at midday. Scattered rains fell in parts of Nebraska and Iowa and are expected to check dry weather reports and also crop deterioration.

However, the Southwest remains dry and damage is increasing. Prices declined early with wheat on forced liquidation, only to rally later. At no time, however, were prices higher than the finish of the previous day. The forecast indicated showers in Illinois, Indiana and Missouri.

Cash demand was fair. Oats were unsettled with hedging pressure and evidence on the advances, while the best buying was by commission houses on resting orders. Rye was steady with the decline in price of wheat.

Strength Is The Keynote Says Whitney

(Branson, Brown & Co., Ltd.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Tuesday's normal influence brought little change in prices, which were resulted in the correction of some extreme positions, while elsewhere throughout the list extension of current advances brought new records. Strength, however, was not continued to the late session of the general market so that a stronger and higher market is quite definitely forecast for tomorrow. Considerable profit taking is to continue to use such moderate reactions as were witnessed today to buy stocks.

I believe the oil group completed its moderate downward reaction in today's market and will resume the general advance tomorrow. Holders of Standard Oil of New Jersey and Standard of New York should not permit their long positions to be influenced by technical signs of merger rumors. Oils have definitely turned for the better, the Standard of New York has objective of 40 points and will reach it, and the deal with Vacuum will be completed, despite technical signals.

Standard of New Jersey has a price objective of approximately 85 for the near term future and later somewhat better than $100. Pan-American will sell above 100. General Asphalt around 125, and Tidewater Associated between 35 and 40. This group and these stocks are to purchase at the present time.

In the utilities, International Tel. & Tel. has finally reached our price objective, consequently, you are now advised to cash in your profits. When you do so apply the proceeds to the purchase of New Jersey, while it is obtainable below 135. Hat Brown & Light has again established a modest new high. It is still a purchase. Consolidated Gas continues its remarkable gain in earnings, seven months report disclosing surplus after charges of $3,687,000, in comparison with $3,399,000 in the corresponding period of last year. Continue the purchase of Erie while it is available below 90.

Ranger & Arrowhead, which was recommended when the rails were not quite as buoyant as they are now, is again recommended for purchase below its top of the year as a decidedly cheap $8 to $9 earner which promises to become an initial dividend.

In this group, B. & O. Atchison and N.Y.C. are still at buying points. In the industrial section, Eastman Kodak has already justified the buying recommendations of the past two days. Expect a new high record for the stock today and to be followed by an additional substantial rise. Simmons Member Pump has reacted enough from its top to provide a good buying point.

Curbs—After a material period of weakness, Consolidated Aircraft is to resume its advance. This company, quietly and thoroughly, through the absorption of additional units, has become the largest independent unit in the airplane industry and the largest in point of production and earnings. The stock is cheap, buy it. Application is being made for listing U.S. Finishing on the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK SUGAR

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The raw sugar market was quiet and was changed today, with a sale reported of about 3,000 bags of Cuban to an outport refiner at 2.93, duty paid. A fairly good withdrawal demand for refined was reported, but there was enough second-hand sugars around to take care of whatever new buying was in evidence. Prices were listed at 5.50 for fine granulated by refiners, with resale holding at 5.20 to 5.30.

TIMBER TRADE IN JAPAN VERY DULL

Lack of Orders Is Put Down to General Slackness Rather Than to Any Tariff Changes

TOKIO, Aug. 8—(By Mail)—The recent increased import duty placed on lumber by the Japanese Government has had little appreciable results on the Canadian lumber trade, according to Mr. C. R. Fraser, of Yokohama, representative of large British Columbia lumber interests.

The market for Canadian lumber in Japan this year has been the worst experienced by Mr. Fraser, subsequent to the great earthquake of 1923, but this is attributed to the general slackness in other lines of business and industry, and not to the tariff.

The reason for this according to Mr. Fraser, is that Japan does not produce a wood that competes with for Douglas fir which Canada reports, and consequently the tariff, in itself, has affected it to but a slight degree.

Canadian trade in hemlock, however, had suffered a temporary setback because the Japanese lumber interests, since the new duty went into force have been able to substitute Shagi, a variety of cedar, which meets the requirements of imported hemlock.

Doubt is expressed by Mr. Fraser that this competition will not continue long as he believes the Japanese will find that working costs will prove too costly, and that the importation of Canadian hemlock will again dominate the market.

There is hope that the tariff on lumber may pick up again owing to the domestic retrenchment policy so strongly advocated by the new Hamaguchi ministry. In this connection it is believed that lumber will form the cheapest material for construction of dwellings, schools and other buildings, in future, rather than the more expensive materials. It remains to be seen, however, how successful the plan of the new government will be and how long it will remain in office.

OILS ACTIVE; SALES HEAVY AT VANCOUVER

Developments at Home Well No. 3 Gives Strong Impetus to Value in Most of Major Issues

MINE STOCKS ARE SLOW AND WEAK

VANCOUVER, Aug. 20—Developments at the Home No. 3 well sent the majority of active oil issues upward on the exchange today with the volume of sales the heaviest in months. The mines were neglected and trended lower. A.P.C. Calmont, Freehold, Home, Hargal and United were the big traders. Calmont at $24.60, an overnight gain of 30 cents. Home advanced to a high of $25, but fell back to close at $24.80, a net improvement of 60 cents. Calgary and Edmonton Corporation, another heavy trader, held ground, closing 10 cents easier at $7.60. A.P.C. moved up 21 cents to $4.99. Calmont, after touching $5.40, eased to close 20 cents off from at $5.36. Freehold advanced 30 cents to $2.15. Hargal was 21 cents firmer at $2. Gains of 5 to 10 cents were scattered through the balance of the oil list.

In the mines all active traders were lower. Big Missouri retraced back 7 cents to $1.45; George Copper 09 cents to 56; Kootenay King 7 cents to 56½; and Pend Oreille 5 cents to 56. There were little changes in the balance of values.

NICKEL ALONE IS AGGRESSIVE

RESISTS GENERAL SLIDE OF LEADERS ON TORONTO

Tech Hughes Has Break of a Dollar, Being Victim of Heavy Liquidation

(Weekly, Perlman & Co.)

TORONTO, Aug. 20.—International Nickel, in a 3 1-4 point gain, was the only aggressive performer on a selling market. Its action benefited particularly the Lindsley issues which started their anticipated move yesterday, slid on anxiety created by a break in Tech Hughes. Tech Hughes, victim of what is believed to be a liquidation in heavily interested estate, broke $1 to $6.50 low, before shuttling irregularly back to within 20 cents of yesterday's close. Unloading of Tech Stock, however, was so limited as to give the impression of uncertainty in profit holders in Sudbury Basin and Lindsley issues. Nickel, who were led to accept their gains.

Sudbury lost $1.45 and Falconbridge $1.50. Shertiff Gordon opened 35 higher, but the gain was lost. Ventures dropped 86 cents in sharp selling in the afternoon. Noranda was the only stalwart of the leaders in holding to a point of gain.

Lake Shore suffered slightly in losing 2 points and Coniagas 1 point to closing during $1.25 down. Other issues were comparatively uninfluenced, but the Teck Hughes movement undoubtedly shook the confidence of an uninformed market. A P. Cons was strong to a 35 cent gain. Developments in Baltac were also among the group showing independent strength. Influence from the $1,000,000 well. C and B Petroleum, at Calgary, wealth 14 points, respectively.

Confidence is strengthening appreciation for this stock due to new vein, which has widened to two feet at a depth of 400 feet encountered it a few days ago is being pushed forward. Assay results are not yet available, but outlook very favorable. Vein, which, for some was sixteen inches wide. Market interest seems to spread.

Malartic has closed down, and does not look good at any price.

MART STRICTLY SELECTIVE NOW

MANY ISSUES UNDER DECLINE WILL TAKE MONTHS FOR COMEBACK

Money Market Situation Satisfactory —Financial Leaders Plan Organizing Holding Company

(W. C. Pitfield & Co., Ltd.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Attempts to force stocks down during the last few days have apparently succeeded but little and this resulted in a revival of the buying movement, with American Telephone, and a few other recent leaders moving into new high ground.

The market has been much proved vulnerable to the selling wave were believed by many to be convinced that the group is not yet ready for an advance. We believe that today's movements will follow the movements yesterday and the leaders will continue still higher. Many of the major body of stocks still not prevent a particularly attractive field.

It is therefore advisable to centre attention upon second grade issues rather than be spread through the entire list on the theory that some of the stocks are now selling much lower than they were a little time ago.

A good many of these issues have been under the selling pressure for a comeback, and in some cases the prices are still low. Money is still are under distribution and are not barred stocks because they are cheaper today than they were in May. We feel that a strictly selective market and it should continue in this vein for some time.

The situation in the money market is satisfactory, and there is no need for no drastic changes in call rates. Money is scarce but the need of cash is now required to finance crop movements, and we see only slightly higher rates now and considerable difficulty in the trend for the end of next week. The advance in call rates should not be interpreted as being a definite upward trend, rather it is a stage that prove to be a technical setback rather than start of a protracted decline.

Here the economists who predicted an Autumn recession in business following the swift pace set during the spring and summer, are swung around to the view that the momentum recently attained appears to assure a high rate of trade activity for the balance of the year. With the Federal Reserve authorities on record as guaranteeing sufficient credit, for business purposes, the outlook for the coming months seems brighter than at any time in recent years.

While the stock market may have to pay fairly high rates for money, consideration is to be taken the attitude right along that it could adjust to pay rates. Under this long as high earnings continued in the major branches of trade With business assured of a plentiful supply of money at reasonable rates the earnings factor appears safeguarded, and representative issues are free to go ahead with the process of discounting the nation's notable prosperity.

HOPELESS TO SAVE

Hope of saving the Reparations Conference at The Hague as a result of the treasury experts' efforts to establish the value of the compromise offer to France, Italy, Belgium and Japan to Great Britain has been virtually shattered, after working until midnight and continuing until 1 a.m. the experts admitted that their final report would constitute a complete inability to agree on the value of the four power offers. The experts from each nation insisted on an entirely different figure.

BUYING IMPETUS AGAIN RENEWED

New Highs Simultaneously Established in Industrials and Rails

(Branson, Brown & Co., Ltd.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The stock market today renewed a vigorous buying impetus from the establishment of simultaneous new highs in the industrial and rails. According to the theory evolved by the late Charles H. Dow, which has stood the test of more than thirty years' market experience, this development re-established the major upward trend. It also afforded strong reason for believing that reactions which precede this stage will prove to be a technical setback rather than start of a protracted decline.

Here the economists who predicted an Autumn recession in business following the swift pace set during the spring and summer are swung around to the view that the momentum recently attained appears to assure a high rate of trade activity for the balance of the year. With the Federal Reserve authorities on record as guaranteeing sufficient credit, for business purposes, the outlook for the coming months seems brighter than at any time in recent years.

SHEEP EXHIBIT IS BEST EVER HERE

Five Hundred Entries at Exhibition Include Good Representation in All Classes

A greater number of entries, a higher standard and a keener general interest marked the sheep exhibit at the Willows Fair yesterday. There were exhibitors from all parts of British Columbia and Vancouver Island was well represented. From Oregon and Washington came a fine exhibit and the work of judging which was in the hands of Mr. John A. Turner, Uplands, proved no simple task.

Mr Turner was enthusiastic in his remarks regarding the exhibit, there being 500 entries this year, with all classes well represented.

"This year's sheep exhibit is by far the best ever shown in Victoria," said Mr Turner, "and the sheep industry in this province is making rapid strides."

Breeders are seekening to the fact, he said, that the province has barred the imported mutton and wool in very large quantities and that a greater attention to home supply will do much toward increasing the prosperity of the country.

"The Southern part of Vancouver Island was particularly suitable for sheep raising, he pointed out, because the growers did not have to contend with the difficulty which confronted sheep raisers in many parts of the province, of obtaining pasture.

While all classes were strongly represented, the Shropshires were in the lead, followed by the Southdowns, Oxfords and Hampshires.

The Fiction Guide

Julian Green, the author claimed by France because of residence, and America because of birth, is the winner this year with "The Dark Journey" of the Harper prize Novel Contest, $10,000.

Virginia Hersch will receive honorable mention for "Bird of God: The Romance of El Greco."

Of "The Dark Journey," Grant Overton says: "He has so far simplified his theme that it can come home with peculiar force to any reader in any country in any age. I feel absolute confidence about it. 'The Dark Journey' is as timeless as 'Madame Bovary.'"

The story centres about Madam Londe, who runs the restaurant in a French provincial town, a creature obsessed by curiosity, who sits at her desk like a huge, sinister spider and spins the threads that draw people, one by one, to their destruction, including her niece, Angela, a pretty, unintelligent girl, who is used as a decoy. "The Dark Journey" was chosen, upon its publication in France, by the French Book-of-the-Month Club as its first selection. It will have a wide sale in this country.

The runner-up, "Bird of God," is somewhat similar in form to "Leonardo the Florentine," by Rachel Annand Taylor. There are only a few authentic facts known concerning El Greco and about these Miss Hersch has woven her story. Eilep Glasgow speaks of it as "A beautifully wrought tapestry, crowded with figures, giving an unforgettable picture of Spain under the Inquisition. This book has very real distinction in beauty and richness.

"The Derugs Trial," by Ricardo Huch. Translated from the German by Lorna Dietz, in which an eminent author proves herself a slak hand at the kind of detective story that is probably worthiest in the eyes of Apollo, the tale dealing literately with recognizable humans at a significant crisis, instead of with robots having fits. Whether or not they do these things better in Germany—and they probably do not—it seems fairly clear that "The Derugs Trial" is miles ahead of most mysteries on almost any couch, a contender for this Bumstead's honors and an enjoying novelty for anybody.

"The Glenlitten Murder," by E. Phillips Oppenheim. Into the silent bedroom of the beautiful Marchioness of Glenlitten steals an alien hand. The lady sees it, hears the report of a pistol and a heavy fall and faints as well she might. The Marquis finds her still unconscious, beside her the dead body of the Comte Raqui de Besset, a millionaire jobo player. Still worse, the famous Glenlitten diamond necklace, once owned by Queen Charlotte, has vanished, and naturally it's a pretty kettle of fish. Intent upon justice, whatever the scandal may be, Sir Richard Cotton bustds upon driving into Lady Glenlitten's past, and it is a pleasure to report that the ensuing commotion, with its flavor of International intrigue, leaves her fair name untarnished, besides filling out the figsw in a workmanlike manner. A harmless yarn expertly manoeuvered and suitable for murdering sleep.

"The Fourth Finger," by Anthony Wynne. Anthony Wynne wangles a bit of medium excitement out of the shooting of Lady Gilmour at Largrplan, the stabbing of Lady MacAlister at Stoke Pogos, the murder of Lord Gilmour somewhere else, the escape of a crazed lady from an asylum near Slough, and several illicit love affairs, without contributing much to the week's fun. Jealousy is the author's standby as a motive, though he adds a diamond necklace and a skeltitution for good measure. The moral may lie in Sir Angus MacAlister's tired remark, "What a damned silly world this is!"

"Storm House," by Kathleen Norris. James Cassell is the latest and by no means the least of Mrs. Norris' sizable list of sensible little orphans who love, suffer, sacrifice and find eventual happiness in the arms of their predestined mates. Starting her career as governess of the infant daughter of Jerry Delafield, a more than usually sensitive writer, she finds herself at her first crossroad when Jerry's invalid wife dies and gossip begins to hum. Then she and Jerry marry, apparently from motives of convenience and it only remains for love to point the way to complications with another woman, belated understanding and peace. "Storm House" boasts a most attractive setting on the California coast, a likable heroine and incident of the sort beloved by this author's vast clientele.

"The Wild Oat," by J. B. Fletcher. Presumably one of Mr. Fletcher's earlier efforts, this tale of country life runs true to a rather dated formula for rural novels. The heroine is Verina Marcberley, "A young woman of education and accomplishments," who manages Meadows Farm after the death of her father, holds off an amateur ornithologist and a neighboring eccentric and finds her first real flutter when Stanmery Pedre comes to mend the threshing machine. Kisses, scandal and nightingales lead to a blissful conclusion.

"The Woman of It," by Clare Ogden Davis. A remarkable human document in the form of a novel, dealing with a fine woman who goes into politics, becomes governor of a state, tackles the problems involved and tries to steer the right course under terrific cross-winds of intrigue, corruption and treachery. She sails ahead until she fails in love and is confronted with the necessity of choosing one of two courses. It is authentic, absorbing, illuminating. It is on the subject of most interest to women today—the conflict between the career and the heart.

"Ex-Wife" (anonymous). Here is the story of what happened to a young woman who allowed a perfectly good and interesting husband to walk out the front door with his suitcase, and it reveals, perhaps for the first time, exactly what it means to a good-looking young woman in a large American city to find herself suddenly abandoned, having to face a masculine world in a new way. "Ex-Wife" is bound to reveal to the most doubting the intelligent and realistic courage of this "lost" generation.

The following books are reported as being most in demand during the last week:

FICTION

1. "All Quiet on the Western Front," by Erich Remarque (Little, Brown). The war as seen from the angle of the German private soldier.
2. "The Laughing Queen," by E. Barrington (Dodd, Mead). A fictional biography of Cleopatra, Queen of Egypt.
3. "Fish Preferred," by P. G. Wodehouse (Doubleday). Doran). Tales of robberies at Blandings Castle, or another of the Wodehouse classics.
4. "They Stooped to Folly," by Ellen Glasgow (Doubleday, Doran). The story of three women who sinned, each according to the fashion of her generation.
5. "Visitors to Hugo," by Alice Grant Rosman (Minton, Balch). A pleasant tale with a point lurking behind the laughter.
6. "Soldiers of Misfortune," by Percival Christopher Wren (Stokes). Love, mystery and adventure in the French Foreign Legion, by the author of "Beau Geste."

NONFICTION

1. "The Specialist," by Chic Sale (Specialist Pub.). A humorous account of the philosophy and achievements of a creative mind.
2. "A Preface to Morals," by Walter Lippmann (Macmillan). Suggestions of an ethical system to suit the age of mechanical power and scientific discovery.
3. "Henry the Eighth," by Francis Hackett (Liveright). A vivid biography of the much-married King who changed the religion of England.
4. "Adventures of an Outlaw," by Ralph Rashleigh (Cape & Smith). Stark adventures and hairbreath escapes of a convict in the Australian bush.
5. "Men and Machines," by Stuart Chase (Macmillan). The story of machinery and its effect on human beings.
6. "Pomp and Circumstance," by E. de Gramont (Cape & Smith). Graceful reminiscences of the ex-Duchesse de Clermont-Tonnerre.

BUILDING PERMIT ISSUED FOR COACH LINES EXTENSION

The Vancouver Island Coach Lines, Limited, has taken out a building permit at the City Hall for $22,000 for a two-storey brick and concrete store and extension to its coach storing places at 634 Humboldt Street. The contractors for the building are Messrs. Luney brothers, of Douglas Street.

NEED GAS MASKS

VANCOUVER, Aug. 20.—In bringing in a verdict of accidental death in the case of Robert Kerr, killed on Monday morning in the plant of the Vancouver Gas Co., the coroner's jury that conducted the investigation on Tuesday at 2 p.m., added a rider suggesting that all men employed in the coke bunkers be compelled to wear proper gas masks. It was stated at the inquest the men working there at present were not equipped with gas masks and it was considered that such a precaution would have prevented the fatality.

Little Milton came home from Sunday school with a mite box.

"Why do they call it a mite box, mother?" asked Milton.

"Because," chirped in his brother, "you might put something in it and you might not."

Real Profit for You in the Want Ads

Read 'Em Daily

The Bargain Counter for the Entire Family

"Listen Here!" Dad's voice fairly trembled with excitement. The family looked up. Dad's nose was buried deep in the Want Ad Section.

"Listen here! A 1927 sedan with new tires for $500! That is a bargain. The railroad fare we spend trotting this young army of a family up to the lake this Summer would pay for it—and we could ride in style in a 1927 sedan!"

Lizabeth Jane, aged sixteen, let her blue eyes wander down the page. "A speed boat. Dad! Look—a speed boat for $125. An outboard motor, and room for three. You and Bud and I could have such fun this Summer chasing around in it! And it is such a peach of a bargain—you can't get a new one for less than three hundred dollars!"

A moment's silence. Then a small, bashful voice, "Mummy," Bud coaxed. "It seems—it seems that a gentleman here in the Want Ads wants to sell his bicycle for ten dollars. Mummy, that's awful cheap. He says it is a swell one. Mummy, all the rest of the fellas—"

"Wah!"

A screech. A scramble. A pile of arms and legs and newspaper which, when straightened out, seemed to be the Want Ad Section of the newspaper—and Baby.

Mother held Baby on her knee. "There—there—did it frighten him? Why—what on earth have you got clutched in your little paw?"

It was a piece of paper. Mother gently took it away from him and unfolded it.

"Fine collie pups for sale cheap—fine playmates for children," she read.

Dad jumped. "Didn't I tell you that kid was smart? Always said he took after me. Come on!"

Mother looked up, a little dazed. "Where are you going?"

Dad straightened. "Where do you think? To buy that baby his collie pup!"

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

A man slightly under the influence of alcohol entered a shop to buy a pair of shoes. He tried on a pair, but complained that they hurt him.

"A little bit tight, eh?" queried the salesman.

The customer fixed him with glassy eye.

"Thatsh none of your business," he said.

"Every bone in my body aches," grumbled the pessimist.

"Then you ought to be glad you are not a herring," responded the optimist.

Shopgirl (to another behind the counter, as a customer comes in)—"Will you wait on this woman?"

Then to the customer—"This lady will wait on you."

MINENA SAILS UP WEST COAST

MR. HARRY T. BARNES MAKES PLEASANT VOYAGE AS FAR AS QUEEN'S COVE

Witnesses Cremation of Wealthy Indian at Historic Friendly Cove

Back at his desk again after navigating the waters of Vancouver Island's west coast on pleasure and excitement bent, Mr. Harry T. Barnes, of Rithet Consolidated, tells an interesting story of the yacht Minena's trip covering a two weeks' outing which took himself and party as far west as Esperanza Inlet, Nootka Sound.

Leaving the yacht's moorings off the clubhouse of the Royal Yacht Club, Cadboro Bay, on Sunday morning seventeen days ago, the anchor was let go in Port Renfrew Harbor early that evening. The next day was occupied in reaching the Bamfield cable station under cover of a dense fog. Deloset, on the easterly side of Barclay Sound, was the next port of call. Leaving there, a stiff westerly wind was encountered and the yacht showed her mettle in beating up to Clayoquot, where the inside waters were traversed under power to Riley's Cove, Sidney Inlet.

Between Riley's Cove and Nootka, the boat demonstrated her stability and seaworthiness off Estevan Point, a notoriously bad spot, where, with such a big ground swell as only the Pacific can raise, a stiff westerly wind and a tide running against both, the skipper and his crew had an interesting time before reaching the protected waters of Nootka Sound. Anchorage was made at the mouth of Boca Del Infierno (Spanish for Mouth of Hades), an interesting spot, where the tide travels swiftly through a narrow opening into a large harbor.

MAN CREMATED

The historic associations of Friendly Cove were revealed when that place was visited. There they heard of an old Indian of renown who was about to journey to the happy hunting and fishing grounds at the entrance of the Nootka, as well as other West Coast natives, to burn everything associated during the last moments with one of their kind after his or her death; but in this instance there was a deviation from age-old custom. The dying man owned one of the best residences in the village, so to save it they placed the odd fellow in a dilapidated smokehouse, which would be more convenient to burn, being of no great value.

Proceeding through the beautiful waterway of Tahsis Canal into Esperanza Inlet, thick fog was encountered and anchorage was made in Espinosa Arm for the night. The next day was spent in Queen's Cove, mouth of Esperanza Inlet. This was the farthest west ventured and the turning point of the voyage, the return being as eventful as the trip out. Off Estevan again, a strong southwesterly wind was experienced, causing a shortening of sail, the rolling rearing gear with which the boat is fitted being found most serviceable. Spending the night in Sidney Inlet, a fine breeze favored the voyage down to Bamfield, and being fair their craft made the more of it.

FOG ENCOUNTERED

Heavy fogs continued more or less to make navigation interesting, particularly from Bamfield east. Expecting a nice run from this latter port of call, the pendulum swung into a heavy smother off Cape Beale. While the wind was fresh, it was necessary to navigate by fog horn between Beale and Renfrew, where the last night away was spent. Beating out from the anchorage in the latter harbor shortly under reefed canvas, the breeze freshened considerably as they drew out into the Straits. Although fair, the shortest possible spread of sail was carried, and with a following sea the passage to the morning in Cadboro Bay was made in the remarkable good time of eight hours.

The party aboard the Minena comprised Harry T. Barnes, the owner, Mr. C. W. Lovell and Captain O. Murray. Captain Murray was for years in charge of the Barnes field launch, and his knowledge of the coast was a big factor in making the trip interesting and enjoyable. While the inlets of the West Coast are worth a little of roughness to reach, presenting ever-changing pictures to delight the eye, a boat must necessarily be staunch and seaworthy and, above all, be handled intelligently to make the trip. The Pacific adjacent to Vancouver Island is no playground for the sailing novice.

The party reported canneries and reduction plants fery busy at the different points at which the yacht called, numbers of boats being seen every day seeking salmon and pilchards. As many as seventy-five seiners were counted at one time off Nootka Sound during the trip.

U.S. ENGLISH DIALECTS TO BE RECORDED

Universities Combine to Organize Production of "Dialect Atlas"—To Study Varying Pronunciations

SPECIAL MEANINGS OF WORDS INCLUDED

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 20.—After arguing all day in a classroom at Yale University, fifty professors representing the great universities of the Country adjourned until next year, united in the belief that they had started a monumental work of scholarship—a dialect "atlas" which is to identify and locate the varieties of American speech.

In calling it monumental, the professors also agreed that practical difficulties would be tremendous.

After the closed meeting today the press was allowed to report the docket and to hear two general addresses which preceded the meeting of encounters in the interests of scholarship and posterity. G. Oscar Russell, professor of phonetics of Ohio State University, spoke of providing for a posterity "when the pronunciation of America and of the world is changed."

PRONOGRAPHIC RECORDS

He urged an extensive collection of phonographic records, so that the phonetic symbols in which the atlas will be written may forever be correctly interpreted in sound.

"If we do this," said Professor Russell, "this investigation will leave behind for the benefit of linguistic scientists throughout the ages 'an acoustic record' without parallel in the history of the world."

He suggested hiding the microphones of sound recording machines so that natural speech could be recorded without making the speaker self-conscious. This suggestion was approved by all the professors who approved of the sound-recording machines.

Seventy-five per cent of the attention of the dialect atlas is to be paid to variations in sound, such as the four ways of pronouncing "care," and twenty-five per cent is to be paid to the use of words, such as "bankat" for "pail," the splitting of infinitives, or saying "ain't."

EFFECT ON SPEECH UNLIKELY

Professor Hans Kurath, of Ohio State University, who is regarded as the probable director of the atlas staff, said it should not be expected to have an effect on speech. He said the atlas might make it possible statistically to propose an average dialect as a standard speech, but that experience with dictionary pronouncinations had shown that standards could not be imposed by scholars.

As a matter of fact, a canvass of the professors present showed that more than half spoke what they called "Middle-West dialect," and would not consider changing it for "Eastern" or "Southern" as a means of communication. They held their dialects were "historically justified" and were older than any speech which may now be proposed as standard in America.

American dialects were not developed out of a common speech, Professor Sturtevant explained, but they are developing into one.

Daily Paper of Australia Fined For Its Comment

SYDNEY, Aus., Aug. 20.—A fine of $1,250 was imposed on the newspaper Labor Daily and a fine of $250 upon its editor today on the ground there had been real and substantial interference in the course of justice by the newspaper in publishing articles headed such as "I.W.W. Frame-up," "The Great Conspiracy Against Labor."

The Labor Daily was in dispute, along with The Sydney Morning Herald for alleged contempt of court, arising from articles published on the arrests of Jack Garden, alleged Communist, and six others in connection with the dispute in the timber mills.

In the case of The Herald, decision will be made later.

TROPICAL FOODS BEST IN OUR SUMMER

Because we have tropical weather in Summer we should eat tropical, alkali-forming foods. Most foods we eat are acid-forming and "breaking" Alkali-forming, or non-acid-forming foods—fruits, vegetables, milk and Roman Meal—are the ideal foods for Summer. Roman Meal is the only alkaline grain food known, because it is a quarter alkaline fluxin. Twenty years ago Robt. G. Jackson, M.D., was drifting from acid accumulation due to eating acid-forming foods. The great Celtic gave him only four months to live. He invented Alkaline Roman Meal, treed upon it and in two years was well. He lives as he is still 100 per cent physically perfect, and has cured five miles in forty-five minutes. Four years ago he won the $1,000 physical culture first prize from all comers. For twenty years Roman Meal has been his chief food, uncooked, with milk and fruits, other recipes on package, a delicious dish. Try a package from your grocer and convince yourself. Or write for sample and free booklet, "HOW TO KEEP WELL," to ROBT. G. JACKSON, M.D., 378 Pine Ave., Toronto 9. Cnt. (Adv.)
